FREE ICE CREAM AND SOFT DRINKS LISTED FOR BIG PARK PARTY

4,000 Klondike Pies Donated by Two Firms; Bottling Company Contributes Beverage; Van Atta Hardware Co. To Furnish 2,500 Whistles

(By Just Kids Safety Club Editor)

THERE'S so much to tell today that we don't know just where to begin. The members of the "Just Kids Safety Club" are about the luckiest boys and girls in the United States. First you had your theater party, and now this glorious climax, a free day at Crystal Lake Park, Monday, June 11.

The generosity of the Crystal Lake Park Co., management is unbounded, for Monday all of the employes and officials will be on hand to show you the time of your life, absolutely free. Free rides on everything except the Roller Coaster, free entertainment with Addison Bain in charge. Everything that the park management can do to help along the success of the party is being done.

Fred B. Scheff, manager of the park, announced this morning that through the cooperation of Moores & Ross, Inc., and the Isaly Dairy Co., 4,000 Klondike Pies will be given away at the park, and through the courtesy of S. L. Birch, of the local Coca Cola Bottling Co., an equal number of bottles of this popular drink will be given the boys and girls.

There'll Be Noise

In order that the party won't be a quiet affair, A. A. VanAtta of the VanAtta Hardware Co., is going to give away 2,500 chirp whistles. These noise-makers sound like birds, and are sturdy in construction, to withstand quite a bit of wear and tear.

The Vaughan Printing Co., has started already to print the 4,000 strip tickets for admission that will be given away Monday to all the kids who wear their club buttons. These tickets can be obtained only at the park office and will be good for free rides and eats from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. on June 11.

For fear that the Custer Cars might not be able to run part of the day for lack of batteries, the Exide Battery Co., E. Churchest, has promised to provide 50 extra batteries for the cars.

Boy Scouts will be on hand Monday morning and see that there is no congestion at the park office where the tickets will be given away, and that no accidents occur during the day.

Don't forget your balls and bats, and that swimming suit that must be separated from the moth balls. Bring your lunch, and if your mother wants to join in your fun, bring her along too.

There's the big free musical revue from 7:30 to 8:30 in the pavilion, too.

Really, there's so much that we'll have to finish this in Saturday night's paper.

Gambling and Crime Spring in Washington Also the Electric Chair Still Hoover and Smith

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8—A survey by the Illinois Association for Criminal Justice, partly financed by the Carnegie Foundation, says gambling, thoroughly organized for many years, plays a great part in Chicago's crime problem.

GAMBLING is literally the worst of vices, most dangerous to those not practice it and to the community on whom they prey.

Those that promoted a revival of Chicago race tracks are responsible, whether they know it or not, for much of Chicago's crime.

IT is hard to escape the crime wave these days. In one case bandits kidnaped a doctor, ordered him to treat one of them, wounded, then beat him cruelly, and finally killed him.

Six active bandits in New York City rounded up four taxi drivers among their victims.

Taxicabs are associated with banditry in the public mind. The policeman, "meaning it all for the best," shot down two of the innocent taxi men, killing one, knocked a third unconscious with his club.

IT may become necessary to do something about our crime wave. Senator Capper's interesting weekly, read by a million and a half prosperous farmers, says "France has more than 50,000 cafes, bars and cabarets."

The Kansas senator, ardent prohibitionist, does not add, as he might do, "The people in France or other foreigners have no crime wave and don't get drunk" except when they happen to be traveling Americans.

Whereas, in this country, we have more speakeasies than they have cafes in France and the biggest crime wave the world ever saw.

BEAUTIFUL weather, lovely flowers, wide streets nearly empty, southern calm, nobody in a hurry. Such is Washington with Congress gone home and all eyes turned toward Kansas City.

THE president leaves for the Wisconsin fishing grounds next week and has work on his mind. There will be 88 persons in his party, the largest working force ever assigned to the President.

SOME mistaken, say this means that the president will be active politically. If that were true one good secretary and one telephone would be enough equipment.

The president intends to keep up with his work as though he were in Washington, and will work every day except Saturday.

THE execution of three young men, sentenced to die today in Washington's new electric chair, is now postponed until June 22, that the president may have time to consider a petition for clemency.

THE three condemned, all young, convicted of killing a policeman, "showed no emotion when death was postponed." That absence of emotion made it easy for them to commit the murder.

WASHINGTON, capital of a nation supposed to be civilized, should have abolished the death penalty, thus setting an example to the forty-eight states, instead of purchasing a new electric chair.

THE political situation, so far as the Republicans are concerned, is settled, except that a minority evidently with its own good reasons, is trying, at the last minute, to defeat Herbert Hoover.

TODAY one Washington editor even tried to convince himself that Gen. Pershing would step to the front, plunge in the glory of war, and take the nomination for himself.

Anything can happen, since the public does not see the hands that pull the strings. But, in Washington, as elsewhere, it looks more than ever like Smith and Hoover.

KALININ, important in the Soviet government, says the American proposals "to abolish war" are nonsense.

Russia, biggest, most powerful nation in Europe, is dangerous, in her hatred of capitalistic government.

Kalinin's utterance should make our people appreciate the importance of being prepared for war, even while you plan to abolish it.

L. E. MYERS SEEKS ELECTION AS JUDGE

Attorney Files Declaration of Candidacy for County Court Post

Louis E. Myers, Marion attorney, and former state senator from this county, has filed declaration of candidacy for judge of the Common Pleas Court on the Republican ticket. Attorney Myers is the first Republican to file. It is expected that he will be the only candidate to represent his party.

Mr. Myers was a candidate two years ago for election to the unexpired term of Charles L. Justice, who resigned to become a judge on the Court of Appeals.

While Mr. Myers has served in the state senate he has never held any other public office. He has practiced law in Marion for the last 32 years.

From present appearances the race for the judgeship at the November election will be between Myers as the Republican candidate and Judge George B. Scofield, Democrat, the present incumbent.

The declaration of Congressman Brooks Fletcher, filed yesterday with the secretary of state, has been received at the Board of Elections office here. Fletcher is running for his fourth term in the U. S. House of Representatives.

J. F. Fatzler, 305 Linden-pl, has filed for the Democratic nomination for central committeeman from precinct A of the fifth ward.

C. F. Shaw, 491 Olney-av, has filed for Republican Central Committeeman from precinct C of the third ward.

COURT TO RULE ON APPEAL OF GEORGE BENDER

State Senator Seeking $25,000 for Alleged Damages in Dry Raid

TWO OTHER CASES HEARD

Suit To Settle Question of Trespassing of Officers Using Search Warrant

Columbus, June 8—The question whether state dry agents, or other officers, who search homes in response to the issuance of search warrants may be guilty of trespassing and liable to suit for damages featured a hearing today before the Ohio Supreme Court.

The hearing related to the appeal of State Senator George H. Bender, Cleveland Heights, from the decree of the Cuyahoga County courts which dismissed Bender's suit against B. F. McDonald, state prohibition commissioner, for alleged damages resulting from the raiding of Bender's home by dry agents on Aug. 19, 1926, and to the appeal of W. J. Patrick, Cleveland, state dry agent, from the action of the lower courts which refused to dismiss Bender's suit for alleged damages against Patrick.

Oral argument, also, was submitted relative to the appeal of John Connors from the decree that he stand trial in the common pleas court at Cleveland relative to a claim of damages filed against him by Bender. Patrick and Connors, who was an East Cleveland policemen, participated in the search of Bender's home, it was stated.

Case Under Advisement

Upon conclusion of the hearing, the supreme court took these cases under advisement.

The Cuyahoga County appellate court upheld the action of the common pleas which set aside a $25,000 judgment against Patrick in favor of Bender and ordered a new trial. The common pleas court dismissed the case against Connors but the appellate court ordered that he be tried by the lower court.

Argument in support of Bender's suits against McDonald, Patrick and Connors was presented by Atty. G. G. Farquharson, Cleveland. Assistant Attorney General Herman E. Werner argued on behalf of McDonald while Atty. George C. Dissett, Cleveland defended Patrick and Connors.

No Liquor Found, Claim

Claim was made by Bender's counsel that the raiders failed to find any evidence of liquor or other violation of law and contended that the raid was based upon an anonymous note sent to a justice of the peace.

Werner argued that neither the state prohibition commissioner nor his deputies were liable for damages. He contended that they were agents of the state and that if any responsibility existed for such raids such responsibility rested upon the state. He claimed that it was the duty of dry enforcement officers to conduct raids which were ordered by valid warrants. Such officers, he said, could not be found guilty of trespassing.

Farquharson, on the other hand, insisted that under existing statutes, dry agents and other officers were prohibited from searching bonafide private homes even when search warrants were issued. Persons making such raids, he claimed, were guilty of trespassing and were liable for damages.

"Dry officers are expected to know this law," said Farquharson.

ONE HURT WHEN CAR OVERTURNS IN DITCH

Three O. W. U. Students in Automobile Accident North of Marion

Three young men, students at Ohio Wesleyan University, narrowly escaped serious injury early last night, when a new Ford roadster in which they were riding, turned a somersault on the Marion-Bucyrus pike, landing on the top. A cut above the left eye and a cut on the left hand, sustained by one of the men from flying glass, was the extent of the injuries received by the three.

The wrecked car was brought to the Albert Bros. garage, where one of the occupants of the car this morning said a blowout was the cause of the accident. He said they were enroute to Delaware from Greenfield, O., and when several miles north of Marion the left front tire sudenly blew out, causing the car to swerve. In attempting to right the machine, the driver pulled the wheel too far, turning the car into the ditch. As the top of the radiator struck the soft ground, the rear of the machine was thrown into the air, turning the car over on its top.

The occupants of the wrecked car were brought to this city by a motorist, and the cuts sustained by one of the men, were dressed. They continued on their way to school this morning by interurban.

COXEY IN RACE

Files As Republican Candidate For Ohio Senatorship

COLUMBUS, June 8—Jacob S. Coxey, leader of "Coxey's army" of a generation ago, today has filed his declaration as a Republican candidate for U. S. Senator, from Ohio, to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Frank B. Willis. The race for the Republican nomination so far has three candidates entered: Coxey, Congressman Theodore Burton, Cleveland, and Chief Justice C. T. Marshall, Zanesville.

Movement for Municipal Landing Field Makes Progress

MEETING LAST NIGHT

Optimism Over Project Expressed by Organization Leaders

An airport for Marion came one step nearer reality last night when a committee of the Marion Real Estate Board met with the Junior Chamber of Commerce to discuss plans for obtaining a field and possible locations.

The Marion Real Estate Board was represented by W. T. Jones, C. D. Schaffner, and Carl Schell, as a committee. R. T. Lewis, president of the board, was also present. Presiding over the meeting was Rhu Cheney, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Those present at the meeting last night were optimistic over the prospects of obtaining a landing field for the city within the near future. The need of a field for Marion was pointed out this morning by Mr. Lewis, who said: "If Marion is to hold her place with other cities in this section of the state, a landing field for airplanes must be provided."

A survey of possible sites for a flying field is to be made soon by representatives of the two organizations.

GIFT PRESENTED TO MARION FIRE CHIEF

Receives Silver Tea Set at Final Session of Convention Program Here

The eleventh annual convention of the Fire Chiefs' Association of Ohio was brought to a close at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon with presentation to Fire Chief T. J. McFarland of a beautiful silver tea set as a mark of appreciation from the chiefs and their families who attended the three-day convention here.

The silver was presented to Chief McFarland by Chief D. K. Moser, of Warren, who in a short talk, expressed appreciation of the visitors for the manner in which the convention had been entertained and for the capable, faithful work performed by the chief during the past year while president of the association.

The chief responded in a few words, expressing his thanks for the kindness of the members of the association and assured them of his continued efforts in furthering the interests of the organization.

Immediately following adjournment, exhibitors started preparing their exhibits for shipment and late afternoon found the hall practically deserted. The decorations were being removed by firemen today and the speakers' platform taken down for removal.

Visiting chiefs in leaving yesterday were profuse in their expressions of appreciation for the co-operation given by the local firemen and citizens in general and were unanimous in their statements that the convention here was the largest and most successful of any yet held by the association.

Believed Kansan May Have Word of Cheer for Allies

BULLETIN

Kansas City, June 12—The anti-Hoover coalition which aims to block Herbert Hoover's nomination by the Republican national convention here next week, swung into action all along the line today—and with a vengeance.

A series of meetings attended by the respresentatives of all other candidacies culminated today in the formation of an anti-Hoover board of strategy consisting of five—Senator James E. Watson, Indiana's favorite son candidate; Senator Charles E. Curtis, Kansas' favorite son; Senator Guy D. Goff, West Virginia's candidate; Louis L. Emmerson of Illinois, and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, widow of the late Illinois senator and a candidate for Congress in her own right.

Kansas City, Mo., June 8—"Anybody but Hoover—anything to stop Hoover." Under this banner the hard-pressed anti-Hoover allies massed their forces today for a gigantic effort to prevent the nomination of the cabinet candidate here next week.

The ways and means of accomplishing their objective remain to be determined.

It is admittedly not an encouraging outlook from the coalition's point of view. But Lowden men, Dawes men, Watson men, Curtis men, Coolidge-but men, Goff men—everyone, in fact, who regards the nomination of Herbert Hoover with gloom and foreboding—are part and parcel of the movement.

Meet and Talk

It would perhaps be too much to say that the allies have perfected an organization. They have met and conferred, not once but many times, and they have agreed upon spokesmen to represent each individual candidate. Louis L. Emmerson will speak for Lowden, Henry W. Marshall represents Watson, Albert Newman will look after the interests of Senator Curtis, William H. Miller of Ohio represents the anti-Hoover element in that state which is favorable to Dawes. These men will be floor lieutenants in the contention, but their principals, that is, the candidates themselves, will constitute the board of strategy behind the scenes.

Harding High Graduates' Plans For Future Include Wide Variety of Occupations, Questionnaire Shows

HAVING just crossed the threshold of a new, bleak, strange and uncertain—the question uppermost in the minds of the majority of those 194 Harding High School students graduated a week ago, is "Am I going to college?" or, in an even larger number of cases, "Where can I find work, employment with both compensation and a future?" In short, "Where is my place in this world of busy, hard working men and women?"

Out of that class of nearly 200 not quite half expressed themselves as "expecting" to go to college, in answers to questionnaires circulated among seniors prior to graduation. A slightly larger number said they "hoped" to continue their education now or in the future.

Ready For Work

The majority of students in answering the question, "What are your plans for next year?" merely said "work," not quite half said college and still others were undecided. Only a few expressed themselves as having already obtained employment.

Nearly every profession and phase of human endeavor was included in answers to a question regarding ambition. Two aspired to be missionaries, one to dancing and dramatics, one to travel, and several to aviation.

The majority were interested in business, all manner of office work being specified, and large numbers in such professions as nursing, law, teaching, medicine and the arts, music, commercial art, landscape gardening and interior decorating. Still others felt themselves cut out for engineers, merchants, contractors, journalists, farmers, and special branches of work.

One boy responded with the single word "Woolworth's" from which may be gathered he hopes to find his fortune in the world of 5 and 10 cent articles.

Choice of Colleges

Of those who plan to go to college next year, only eight had chosen schools located outside of the state, and the majority of students had selected Ohio State and Ohio Wesleyan Universities.

History was voted the most popular subject, with the languages, typing and shorthand, literature and the sciences as close seconds. The majority of students were satisfied with their courses and felt their high school days to have been worth while.

Only 13 students completed their education in less than the specified 12 years. One student, in answering the question, "Did you enter public school work in less than 12 years?" said, "No—12 big years."

Navy Band Arranges

ON AIR SATURDAY NIGHT

Program Features

"Jungle Drums," a patrol by Albert W. Ketelbey, will be played by the United States Navy Band in the program to be broadcast Saturday night at 7 o'clock over the blue network.

The band, playing from the Navy Yard in Washington, will open the program with "Old Comrades," a march by Teike. The scherzo and finale from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony in C Minor, Gillet's "Loin du Bal," a modern selection and the andante cantabile from Tschaikowsky's String Quartet will be other selections.

More melodies from the South Seas will be broadcast by Norman Clark and his South Sea Islanders through the red network Saturday night at 6 o'clock.

Taking full advantage of the sharp contrast in rhythm the Hawaiian music affords, this group will offer "Rose of Honolulu" immediately after "Kumakai," and will play the lilting "Wreath of Heaven" as an introduction to the "Kalima Waltz."

William Simmons, baritone, will be featured in a program of old favorites in the Atwater Kent Summer Concert to be broadcast Sunday night at 8:15 o'clock over the red network.

A new version of "Samson and Delilah" will be offered over the red network Sunday night at 8:45 o'clock as the Bible Drama program. Sunday night's offering will be named "The Come Back."

Request numbers for old southern airs and spirituals will be presented by the Utica Jubilee Singers Sunday night at 8:15 o'clock in their broadcast over the blue network.

Suffered Severe Cramps at Night and After Meals

Konjola Completely Banished His Stomach Miseries and Nervousness.

MR. WILLIAM THALL.

"Konjola gave me the only real relief I ever got from stomach trouble and nervousness and I will always recommend this medicine to those who suffer," said Mr. William Thall, 913 E. Fulton St., Columbus, Ohio.

"The food I ate would turn to acid causing severe cramps that would nearly double me up. I suffered these pains after meals and during the night. Many times I wouldn't close an eye from the time I went to bed until I got up the next morning. At last I was a nervous wreck and seemed to be trembling all the time.

"I took four bottles of Konjola and it completely banished all the stomach miseries I used to suffer and relieved me of the awful nervousness. Now I can eat anything I want and the dreadful cramping spells never come over me any more. Konjola built me up sufficiently to go back to work and I will always feel indebted to the makers of this great medicine."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that had been going on for years. At the same time many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product until now Konjola is the most highly endorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is strongly recommended here in Marion at Stump & Sams Pharmacy, and is also being sold by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.

Old Home Town Marks Place Where Famous Writer Lived

The home folk's tribute to a columnist.

Gallipolis, Ohio, has been in existence since 1790. It was visited by Lafayette, and it has always been the home of genius. It was founded by a little band of French writers and painters, and the tradition persists. Everybody who is born in Gallipolis paints or writes.

But O. O. McIntyre, the famous columnist who writes about New York, has put Gallipolis on the map. He spent most of his boyhood there. Since he has been engaged in the business of making New York famous, he has not forgotten his home town. In his column he often mentions Gallipolis with the fervor of a favorite son who is far away but does not forget.

Recently, Gallipolis decided to reciprocate the favor. The Gallipolis Community Association has caused a marker to be erected outside the house where Odd McIntyre used to live.

McIntyre was born in Platisburg, Missouri, but went to Gallipolis when he was six years old. His mother had died, and he was sent to live with his grandmother.

McIntyre is said to reach the largest public of any living writer. There are few persons of reading age who have not read at least some of his writings. His "New York Day by Day" and his weekly articles are followed regularly by many millions of readers.

O. O. McIntyre is a daily contributor to The Star.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT IN DENVER FOR STRAY DOGS

Denver—"Capital punishment" for stray dogs found on Denver's streets will be inflicted by carbon monoxide gas, according to plans okayed by Mayor Stapleton. Four death cells will be constructed in the new dog pound where the unfortunate canines will meet their death.

Heretofore, stray dogs have been impounded in a private pound used by the city under contract. Operation of this pound did not meet the approval of a local humane society which was instrumental in causing the construction of a municipal pound. A pound master will be hired by the city and instructed to handle the dogs with all the kindness possible.

-o- The New Book -o-

By FRANCES JENNINGS

W[illegible] decidedly not the best, perhaps the most unusual book Kathleen Norris has produced is "Beauty and the Beast," which appears on the [illegible] of Doubleday Doran.

The story is of the preposterous but [illegible] variety commonly termed "[illegible]" by enthusiasts. It traces the [illegible]es of a wealthy American [illegible] aboard her yacht the "Dixie [illegible]" and in the company of proper [illegible]s and just a few of the many men who have already succumbed to her youthful charms, ventures into foreign waters, the fascinating country of Sicily and stumbles into the most absorbing of fairy-tale adventures.

Although "little-struck" and excessively fond of princes, counts and the like Miss Jane Ritchie Davenport has in addition the American girl's love for a real "he-man". In this case, fed-up on be-titled heroes Miss Davenport happily falls political captive of a famous bandit who turns out to be not only a real "he-man" but, in his attitude towards womankind, a gentleman as well. Janey falls in love and encounters some romantic and wild adventures and finally safety, a safety that means to Janey parting from the one person for whom she had ever cared—for bandits are not habitually welcomed into the southern aristocracy which Miss Davenport so capably represents.

The tale goes on and Miss Davenport, as heroines will, finds happiness in the end of the book, and, sad to relate, in another man.

Out of the bounds of reality as it is Mrs. Morris' book does not however, fail to accomplish its purpose. It seems to have been written, like most of her books, to entertain. Although the characters are well-drawn and the plot interesting the book as a whole is rather amateur and perhaps the least likeable of any of the famous Kathleen Norris fiction.

COURTSHIP OF CALVIN COOLIDGE

THE courtship of Calvin Coolidge as related by Cameron Rogers in his new book, "The Legend of Calvin Coolidge" was neither good nor old-fashioned, but for its laconic brevity it may well become a legend.

"One morning while Coolidge was shaving before a small mirror hung near a window," says Mr. Rogers, "he saw, passing upon the street below, a girl. She was a pretty girl and she walked gracefully, but with determination. Calvin stretched his neck and craned. Weir, (a young man with whom Coolidge shared a room) observed him with surprise.

"Calvin craned again, but the girl was quite definitely gone. He said soberly: 'Likely girl going up the street,' and added, as an afterthought, 'Guess I'll have to marry her.'

"Weir started, 'What's her name?'

"'Don't know her—yet,' replied Calvin bleakly, and resumed his shaving.

"In time the girl passed again beneath his window. He pointed her out to Weir and was surprised to find that Weir knew who she was. He would introduce Calvin to her. He did—and as time passed it became evident that Calvin had now added to his routine of life a scheduled attendance upon the comely Miss Goodhue.

There passed a time then, according to Mr. Rogers, when things went very badly.

r5u d ' ro?nm y r2 2m s ETA

Calvin was despondent over his unsuccessful efforts. He sat gloomily in his friend Lucey's cobbling establishment, and "practiced a barren introspection."

Miss Goodhue spent the vacation with her parents in Burlington, Vermont, and Calvin went to Burlington:

"Approaching the Goodhue home, he met Mr. Goodhue, who surveyed him with surprise. He said at once, without hedging, 'What are you doing here?'

"Calvin said firmly, 'I'm here to marry Grace.'

"Mr. Goodhue recovered himself to say in a tone full of interest: 'Does she know it?'

"'No,' said the younger man, 'She doesn't, but she will.'"

And, as the story goes, she did. They were married the following October.

DE FOURTALES WRITES OF MAD KING

Completing a romantic trilogy, the manuscript of a new book by Guy de Fourtales, author of "Frans Dost" and "Polonaise" is now in the hands of Henry Holt & Co. and will appear in the fall. Its principal character is Ludwig, the Mad King of Bavaria, although Wagner and Nietzsche play almost as important parts in the study, and its pages are filled with other characters of the times in Europe. The French title of M. de Fourtales' new book was "King Hamlet." A title for the American edition has not yet been chosen, but the book may be called "The Mad King and His Friends." M. de Fourtales has recently been made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. His "Polonaise" is the life of Chopin.

MINISTER'S DAUGHTER, IN "THE YOUNGEST ONE"

"The Youngest One," Katharine Haviland Taylor's new novel which has just been published by Doubleday Doran, is the story of a happy-go-lucky minister's daughter. With her two sisters hastened into safe marriages, her improvident father dead, and an invalid mother to support, Valette turned to the only gift she had, her voice. In vaudeville she won by hard and continuous work a valued independence and an important place in the electric signs. But it is of her love life that Miss Taylor makes her story. How Valette in brave-spirited generosity gave herself to one man who was not big enough to understand her, and learned to love another who was of more finely tempered spirit, makes a drama of tense emotional strength and poignancy.

"GAY-NECK" WINS CHILDREN'S PRIZE

THE John Newbery medal for "the most distinguished children's book of the past year" was awarded to Dhan Gopal Mukerji for "Gay-Neck." The award was made by Annabel Porter, chairman of the Children's Librarian Section of the American Library Association at their fifteen convention which just closed at West Baden, Ind.

John Newbery, an eighteenth century publisher and bookseller was one of the first publishers to give special attention to books for children. The medal, named in his honor, is the gift of Frederic G. Melcher of New York City and can be awarded only citizens or residents of the United States.

Dhan Gopal Mukerji was born in Calcutta in 1890, the son of exclusive Brahmins and was brought up and educated as a citizen of the old Hindu regime. He studied at Calcutta University, Tokio University, Japan, Leland Stanford University, America, and has since lectured extensively here and in England.

He has written several books, among them, "The Face of Silence," "My Brother's Face," "Caste and Outcast," and four books for children. He is also the author of "A Son of Mother India Answers," his reply to Katherine Mayo's "Mother India" and of "Gay-Neck." The latter is the glamorous picture of an Indian boyhood and the saga of a Carrier Pigeon. His next book, announced for August, will be, "Ghond the Hunter."

Others who have received the medal are Hendrik Van Loon for "The Story of Mankind," Arthur Bowie Chrisman for "Shen of the Sea," Hugh Lofting for "The Voyages of Dr. Doolittle," Charles Finger for "Tales from Silver Lands" and Will James for "Smoky."

All Outdoors AND Where To Go

BY JAMES W. STUBER

COLUMBUS, June 8—Scribes of the outdoor field set out to standardize the names of various fishes and game animals, at a meeting of the Outdoor Writers Association of America recently, names so often confused through diversified forms of spelling and in doing so did a real service for millions of sportsmen and readers throughout the United States and Canada. The writers will ask all editors of newspapers and magazines as well as publishers of dictionaries to accept and use the names selected.

If the outdoor writers have their way, the name "Musky" (singular) and "muskies" (plural) will hereafter be used in speaking of the fresh water fighting tiger fish, which has formerly been referred to as maskinonge, muscalunge, moskellunge, muskallonge, muscallonge, lunge, or what have you. No one seemed to know how it was spelled. Even the dictionaries had it in various forms. Now it is to be "musky."

The following classifications and forms of spelling were also adopted:

Wall-eye, to replace pike-perch, pickerel, dore and Susquehana Salmon.

Crappie, to replace lamp-lighters, crappie, shad, Newlights, strawberry bass, speckled bass, silver bass or Lake Erie.

Brook trout is the name given speckled trout.

Lake Trout is the name to replace grey trout, salmon trout, mountain trout, grey lake trout, land-locked salmon, Mackinaw trout, or togue.

White tail deer, is the name given to the Virginia deer, red or flag deer.

The next meeting will be held at the Izaak Walton League convention in Chicago in April 1923.

AMONG the outdoor writers in the association many of whom were present at the Cleveland meeting are Morris Ackerman, of the Cleveland News, president of the Outdoor Writers Association; Ozark Ripley, Chattanooga, Tenn., vice president; Rex Beach, Chicago, second vice president; Horace Lytle, Dayton, secretary and T. B. Gray, of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, treasurer, William Barber Haynes, Akron, O., Carlos Avery, American Game Protective Association, New York; "Wisconsin" Cal Johnson, Milwaukee; L. T. Kellie, Chicago; Phil Lamothe, Mattawa, Ontario; Gregory Clarke, Toronto, Ontario; Merril Denison, and Don Jerrett, Don-Ald Hough, Romer Gray, Jack Miner, Ben C. Robinson, Robert Page Lincoln and James W. Stuber, all of whom are authors, editors or contributors to newspapers of recognition or magazines of national circulation, and most of whom are big game hunters and wild life conservationists. Ed Taylor of the Chicago Daily News was elected honorary president. Chicago writers who will join the association are Bob Becker of the Chicago Tribune; Buell Patterson of the Herald Examiner; and Nasy Buckingham, editor of American Wild Flowers. Ernest Thompson Seton, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Kermit Roosevelt, Zane Gray, and other writers in the outdoor field have been invited to affiliate with the new association, which plans to place outdoor writing on a high plane, discredit the nature-faking writer, and eliminate as far as possible the unreliable and the "phoney" outdoor articles that give readers a wrong impression of the outdoor world. Only writers who have "been there" and whose works have been recognized can obtain membership.

If you want to go deer or moose hunting this fall and don't know where to go, one of the best places in Ontario is at Mattawa. Here deer, and moose are plentiful, and bass, trout, wall-eyes, and other game fish are abundant. Phil Lamothe, Mattawa, is an outfitter who can give reliable information. Mattawa is in the Nipissing district, of the C. P. R. Ry., about two hours ride east of North Bay, on the Ottawa River. North from Mattawa one can easily reach Kipawa, Timiskaming, Beauchene, and other good hunting and fishing points.

OHIO fishermen who want to go to Michigan can get good fishing in the Muskegon River. This stream flows from Houghton Lake to Lake Michigan. Bass, wall-eyes, and rainbow trout are available. Croton Dam is a good stopping place. It is reached via Pere Marquette Ry., to Newago. Good roads all the way to Houghton Lake for the motorist. Oz Van Worner at Newago is a guide who can give further information in helping to arrange your trip.

* * *

SAND Lake Michigan is a place not so far away from Ohio. It is in Lenawee county and reached by way of the Lake Shore to Pentecost, or by motor through Toledo to Sylvania, to Sand Lake. Fish, bass, bluegills, perch, sunfish, catfish. This is a small lake but in good fishin territory and other good lakes are close at hand.

Bacon Leads Hitters Of Marion Eagles Team

SHARROCK HOLDS SECOND POSITION

Local Nine To Play Celina at Lincoln Park Sunday Afternoon; Old Timers Fail To Stand High in Averages

BY EARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

Although he has only made five hits in a like number of games, Francis Bacon, manager of the Marion Eagles baseball team, is leading his players in hitting with an average of .417.

Sunday several members of the team, especially those who have been feeling old age creeping upon them, will attempt to boost their averages against the Celina nine in a contest slated for Lincoln Park. A crack battery will oppose them and those best informed predict that hits will be few and far between.

Sharrock is holding down second place of the hitting with a percentage of .412. He has made seven safeties in 17 times at bat. Bacon was to bat 12 times.

These two players are far in the lead. Pine is in third place with an average of .238. Mays is next in order and is followed by Stull.

One of the surprises of the present season is the failure of old timers to handle the ash to a better degree of satisfaction. Buckland, Price and Rowan have been in a slump since the season opened each managing to obtain but two hits in five games. These men were depended upon by Manager Bacon to carry the brunt of the Eagle attack.

Bacon played in five games but is only credited with 12 times at bat. He has a good eye and has a goodly number of walks to his credit.

The leading hitters of the team rank as follows:

Player	G	AB	R	H	Pct.
Bacon	5	12	7	5	.417
Sharrock	4	17	2	7	.412
Pine	5	21	5	5	.238
Mays	2	6	0	1	.167
Stull	4	13	1	2	.154
Buckland	5	17	2	2	.118
Price	5	19	3	2	.105
Rowan	5	20	1	2	.100
Conroy	2	1	0	0	.000
Longshore	3	4	0	0	.000
Rosberry	1	1	0	0	.000

Jack Dempsey Remains Best Big Money Bet For Rickard

BY FRANK G. MENKE

All these fistic motions made out Los Angeles way by Jack Dempsey mean—well, what do they mean?

Is it a gesture by the old war horse merely to keep his name conspicuous for later-on theatrical purposes—or is he really serious?

This is the open season for guessing and nobody is barred. One guess is generally as good as the next for the simple reason that Dempsey always has had the knack of veiling himself with plenty of uncertainty as to his future doings.

No Coin in It

Among the last words Dempsey spoke while sojourning within the general confines of New York were:

"Nix for me on the fight stuff. I'm all done."

Also included among the farewell remarks were:

"Say, how much do you reckon I could get throwing a few punches at Risko or Sharkey this summer provided Tunney whips Heeney and decides he doesn't want to fight another guy of about my size?"

Of course, the indefinable orator spoke a few other spokes, too. One went this way:

"I've signed up to be an actor in a show that will be staged by David Belasco—and that's my racket from now on."

Would Rather Fight

In later comments, he opined:

"This actor stuff? Say I don't like it. But a man must work to live. But I'd rather fight six fights than act six nights."

It is to be remembered that Tex Rickard and Jack Dempsey are pals. Each has made plenty of money for the other in days gone by. And neither is adverse to grabbing a bit of added cash this season.

Of course, if Rickard had corralled another mighty magnet like Dempsey then he probably wouldn't be hopeful—and eager for Dempsey to fight another fight or two. But Rickard hasn't unearthed any such drawing card.

Still Ace of Aces

Dempsey, veteran, ex-champion, voluntarily retired fighter, is still Rickard's ace of aces. Dempsey, on a pair of crutches, could outdraw the contender group today. Some think that if the crutches were slightly concealed he might, fighting a non-champion, draw a gate close to what Tunney and Heeney will draw.

But Dempsey is not yet on crutches. Trained carefully, he could climb into any ring in the world and size up as the most dangerous menace to Tunney's reign.

Rickard knows that.

So does John Dominick Public.

And Dempsey is slightly cognizant of that fact, also.

After which—what?

Will Draw $3,000

Dempsey will draw around $3,000 a week as an actor. If the show is a hit and runs a full year his gross earnings would notch no more than $100,000.

On the other palm, Dempsey could, by training six weeks and fighting anywhere from one minute to the full 10 or 15 rounds, earn from $300,000 to $500,000.

What would you do?

Sure you would. And it looks as if Jack Dempsey is going to do the same thing. But before he does it he will go through with his theatrical contract—as far as it's necessary to go. And that isn't far.

For the contract contains the proviso that Dempsey, on two weeks' notice, can quit the show and go into training if matched for a fight.

LEJEUNE TO APPEAR AT LEGION MEETING

Plans Under Way for Annual State Convention at Columbus

Columbus, June 8—Plans are under way today for the annual state convention of the American Legion to be held here Aug. 20 and 21. Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, commanding officer of the U. S. Marines, has accepted tentatively an invitation to address the meeting.

General Lejeune will come here unless duties require him to be out of the country, the committee of chairmen announced yesterday. Another international figure who will attend the meeting is Paul V. Claudel, French ambassador to the United States.

The convention is expected to be the largest ever held in the state. Plans are being made to entertain 10,000 visitors.

Fothergill Loses Weight But Recovers Hitting Ability

Detroit, June 8—Robert ("Fat") Fothergill, rotund outfielder of the Detroit Tigers, who today leads the American League batters, is the same goat who was benched by Manager Moriarty this spring because he couldn't hit.

Fothergill reported at training camp pounds overweight. By strenuous efforts he reduced his poundage to the comparatively modest figure of 245, and immediately began hitting the ball with his former effectiveness.

BUTLER TEAM WINS FAST CONTEST, 8-7

Return Game Will Be Played in Marion with Kenton Nine

Kenton, June 8—Playing before a crowd of 200 fans, Butler's Clothiers from Marion officially inaugurated Kenton's recreational ball season by defeating the Kenton Postoffice club 8 to 7 in an exciting game at Carshop diamonds Thursday evening. A return game is to be played in Marion during the coming week.

The visitors copped their two winning runs in the sixth frame after the score was tied at six all in the fifth. Kenton was able to score but one lone tally in the sixth being retired with two men on bases.

Haumering Lease, hurling for the letter carriers, for a total of seven hits in the opening two innings, the Aces pushed across six tallies. In the five remaining innings Lease held the visitors to six scattered hits.

Kenton was held scoreless until the third frame when they put across two tallies off two hits. The big feature came in the fifth when Bo Nichols poled out a three bagger with the bases full and then scored himself on a hit by Manahan, tieing the score. The locals chalked up nine bingles off Jones in the box for Marion.

While the Butlerites have played in 10 games this season losing but one, the locals played for the first time yesterday. They are under the management of Bert McFarland.

If You Have Been Skeptical of Five-cent Cigars

To the gentlemen of the smoke jury—to you men who have reached the decision that you just can't get a good smoke for five cents—we want to offer some new evidence. All we ask you to do is to try one more five-cent brand: Havana Ribbon. You're going to be surprised! At last, for the small sum of five cents you can get a cigar made entirely of ripe, long-filler tobacco. Never heard of such a thing? Maybe not. But it's a joy'us reality now. Not a strand of bitter, raspy under-ripe nor a trace of insipid over-ripe tobacco usually found in low-priced cigars. Nor any short, loose ends to crumble in your mouth. No, sir, Havana Ribbon has the fragrance, mellow-mildness, rich flavor of fine tobacco at its best. Because every leaf is fully RIPE. Risk one nickel, men—at any nearby cigar counter. Or, better still, try a Practical Pocket Package of five cigars.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, June 8—If those in the rear will kindly be quiet and watch the birdie very closely, Humbert J. Fugazy, the man with a fountain pen for a forefinger, will show you how he can sign the leading challenger for the light heavyweight title to bouts with the champion in that class and the one immediately below it and wind up by getting him neither fight. And the fault need not be of the challenger's making.

The saps were startled to learn yesterday that the New York Commission had sanctioned a match between Leo Lomski, chronic challenger in the light heavyweight division, and Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, for July 4. It is a good match but it may never take place. Lomski also is signed with Fugazy to get a title shot at Loughran or Slattery before the end of the current outdoor season. Lomski may lose that spot, too.

Latzo Fight Certain

In fact, with three contracted fights before him, the only one he is certain of is his meeting with Pete Latzo next week. A mirror maze of absurd match-making has made it possible for Lomski to beat Latzo from here to there and still stand disqualified from any chance of meeting Walker on July 4 or of getting his chance at the light heavyweight title later in the season.

The situation in question can be brought about in this manner:

Ace Hudkins and Walker are to meet for the middleweight title in Chicago on June 21. If Hudkins wins, Walker is out as Lomski's opponent. And so is Hudkins, since Lomski and the Nebraskan are handled by the same management. Mr. Fugazy's active mind has conceived several alternatives, including the possibility of Latzo winning from Lomski and then meeting either Walker or Hudkins, according to the way the Chicago fight goes. But when I left his presence today, he still was struggling manfully with the problem of removing the bug from Lomski's hands in the event that Hudkins wins that bout in Chicago.

Mr. Fugazy's next trick will be to demonstrate just how it will be possible for Lomski to beat both Latzo and Walker to a pump and still manage to get his fling at the light heavyweight title, the inducement which attracted him to Mr. Fugazy's fistic parlor in the first place. He can do this chance without the slightest degree of comeback, provided Jimmy Slattery beats Tommy Loughran for his championship on June 28. Lomski according to the official views of the local commission, Loughran is the only fighter who is obligated to fight Lomski for the title. If Slattery doesn't get the spot—and reports have him refusing to fight Lomski last winter—Lomski may gaze pensively at the distant skyline and, if Lomski comes around headquarters seeking redress, he will find the noble commissioners looking out the window, too.

As matters stand, our busy promoter has made so many contradictory moves that possibly he stands to cash in on none of them.

Fifth Place Robins But Four Games Behind Leading Reds

RUBE BRESSLER CAUSES DEFEAT

Cards Jump into Second Place by Defeating Cardinals; National League Fight Develops into More Than Race; Pirates in Running

New York, June 8—With the fifth-place Robins only four games behind league-leading Cincinnati National League pennant race is more than a race—it's a subway jam. And Pittsburgh, behind Brooklyn, is coming back to its normal stride. Babe Bressler go may cost the pennant. After getting a win against his former mates on Sunday, the veteran delivered an error in the eleventh inning yesterday and drove in the only run in a pitching duel between Bill Doak and Pete Donohue. Donohue yielded only five hits and Outfielder William Held the Reds to two.

Giants Beat Rhem

Flint Rhem (pronounced "Rum") added distinction for Grover Cleveland by failing to beat the Giants, hitting the first home run of his major league career. But pinch hitter Andy Cohen's long wallop in the ninth inning gave the Giants a 4 to 3 victory over the Cardinals. Rhem, who turned in his ninth victory, suffered his eleventh straight defeat after being relieved.

Boston, to stop their string of nine straight defeats, the Phillies joined the Cubs in the cellar. Benge held the Cubs to seven hits, including Hack Wilson's tenth home run of the season.

Scott Center of Fight

Everett Scott, outfielder who is substituting for Greenberg at first base, is the center of a fight between Pittsburgh in the race for the National League pennant. Scott recently was made the target of a bean ball pitched by Carmen Hill of the Pirates. Scott charged the mound and a fight ensued. Both players were ejected from the game.

Pittsburgh yesterday made five hits in one game and yesterday his second home run of the day staked the Pirates to an 8 to 6 win over Boston in the twelfth inning. Hornsby, Barnhart and Taylor also hit for the circuit.

Bill Burwell, former Indianapolis pitcher, won his first game for the Reds.

The New York Yankees, who lead the Athletics by 10 full games and are undefeated in the west, have taken up the sport of playing with their American League rivals in much the same manner as a cat tortures a mouse. They allowed Cleveland to lead them for seven innings yesterday and then scored eight runs to win by an 8 to 2 margin. In a pinch Joe Shaute got rid of Babe Ruth and Buster Gehrig at the cost of one run only to be bumped by Tony Lazzeri's homer with two on.

In the ninth Shaute was the victim of Ruth's twentieth homer and Gehrig's twelfth. George Pipgras, his opponent, turned in his tenth victory of the season.

The St. Louis Browns tied the Indians for third place by trimming the Athletics, 4 to 1. Alvin Crowder held the A's to four hits while a four-run rally, including Brannon's second homer in two days, settled Lefty Grove's hash.

Owen Carroll held Boston to five hits, winning 5 to 2, and Detroit shoved the Sox out of fifth place.

The third shift in the standing of the American League clubs occurred when the Senators moved out the White Sox, 7 to 5, and took seventh place away from them. Kenna, rookie catcher obtained by the Senators from Minneapolis, got two hits in his big league debut.

WOODS and WATERS by Homer Bow

JUNE 16 and the opening of bass season, which seems to be the official opening of all outdoors activities in the Buckeye state, are but a matter of two weeks away and the wise fisherman will make his plans for the opening day during the coming week so that there will be no hitch in arrangements at the last moment.

If you plan to open on a lake, you should engage a boat now as there will probably not be enough outboard propelled craft to go around on June 16. If you are going down to one of the camps you will want to see the landowners and tell them that you are going to camp there the night before or early to be on the job with the break of day, or just before if the weather is right.

Spring fishing in Ohio has been suspicious this year, far more so than for some seasons past, and anglers are looking forward to the opening of bass season with more than usual interest. Last season was poor in most localities.

When you take into consideration that we are residing in a highly populated area and that Columbus also lies intact many streams, which otherwise would yield fish, angling in this part of the state is exceptionally good, both from a lake and stream standpoint.

Where will you open the season?

With water conditions normal, the rivers of the state should afford excellent fishing for small mouth.

I have heard of several parties who returned bass during the closed season when they were fishing for other fish who could not seem to get away from the bronze beauties.

Wherever you go, make early preparations.

RUTH AHEAD

Babe Six Games In Lead of 1927 Season

New York, June 8—Babe Ruth today is six games ahead of his 1927 home run pace. He collected No. 20 against Cleveland yesterday and exactly one minute later Lou Gehrig connected for his twelfth circuit clout of the season. Ruth had not made a hit in his last eleven times at bat.

The National League sluggers are staging a red hot home run marathon. Hack Wilson got his tenth yesterday and tied Del Bissonette for the lead. Rogers Hornsby hit his ninth and is tied with Jim Bottomley for runners up honors.

ARMAND EMANUEL IS GIVEN DECISION OVER MIKE IN 10 ROUNDS

Battle Shows Old Boy Still Able To Carry on in Ring

New York, June 8—The life and battles of Michael Francis McTigue will be continued indefinitely.

There's a fight in the old boy yet, and he proved it last night by giving Armand Emanuel, of San Francisco, a gallant battle for 10 rounds at Madison Square Garden.

Emanuel won enough rounds to grab the decision, but never found a spot where he could ease up. Old Mother commanded respect for his ancient blade when he felled the Jewish boy with a right hander to the chops in the first round. It was seven rounds to McTigue's three.

Mick gun kept his left shoulder high and his body turned, so that Emanuel was forced to resort to coming up under Mike's elevated left arm with uppercuts. The youngster employed a fast left jab to good advantage and bookied fairly well with that hand. However, he didn't uproot to the uppercuts as a jarring hitter.

The high spot of the fight arrived in the last round when McTigue shot a straight right to Emanuel's jaw and sat him down for a count of eight.

Report City Debt Reduced $171,739 in 14 Months

A reduction of $171,739.15 in the general indebtedness of the city of Marion between Feb. 27, 1927 and April 28 of this year, was announced at the city hall yesterday. The figures are based on information supplied by the state examiners who are now checking the city books.

It was also disclosed that since January 1926, the bonded indebtedness has been reduced $410,518.15 which, based on the five per cent interest usually paid on bonds, would mean a saving of approximately $20,000 a year in interest.

It was also said at the city hall that a continuation of the present plan of street improvement, that is, increasing where it is only an absolute necessity, for the next four years, will find the finances of the city in a very satisfactory condition. Street improvements for this year will be confined to W. Center st. the surfacing of S. Prospect st and possibly the paving of Homer st.

Kiwanians Of Six Cities Represented At Mt. Gilead Meeting

23 ARE PRESENT FROM MARION

Address by C. A. Jones, Former Willis Secretary, Feature of Program

Mt. Gilead, June 8 — Mt. Gilead was the scene of a six-city Kiwanis meeting last night when representative groups from Delaware, Galion, Crestline, Mansfield, and Marion clubs met with the local club in the Moreen Room of the Globe Hotel. The meeting replaced the regular Thursday luncheon for the majority of clubs meeting on that day.

C. A. Jones, former secretary to the late Senator Frank B. Willis, gave the address of the evening on, "What National Conventions Do." He told of the machinery of the convention, and how in many instances some trivial matter wholly unexpected, has turned the choice of a candidate from the favorite to a less pretentious opponent. His talk was received with generous applause.

The Mansfield Club won a flag as a prize for the club having the largest representation present, its delegation numbering 35. The flag was presented by Lt. Gov. R. Bartlett of the Fremont Club. S. T. Money of Mansfield won a bill-fold in a drawing which made a clean sweep of honors of the evening for Mansfield. Marion had the closest contender with 23 present.

The president or one of the trustees of each club was called upon by Judge C. H. Wood, president of the local club. G. Farr Larie, president of the Marion Club, was unable to be present because of illness and his place was taken by Ed C. Watters, vice president. Officers representing the other visiting clubs were:

Galion, E. B. Beall, president, Dale Brothers, trustee; Crestline, O. F. Kline, president, C. R. Beaver, trustee; Mansfield, F. R. Cahall, president, H. C. Finefrock, trustee; Delaware, F. M. Marriott, president, J. Fred Gleich, trustee.

The welcome was given to the visiting clubs by President C. H. Wood of Mt. Gilead, after a song had been led by "Bub" Wilson, of Defiance, who is a former song leader of the local club. Remarks were given by Lt. Gov. R. Bartlett of the Fremont Club. After each club had been heard from, President Wood called on each club for a feature.

"The Singing Salesman," was offered by Mr. Biddle of Marion, music was given by the Mansfield Club, and other interesting features presented.

The ladies of the Kiwanians made the Lotalia Inn their headquarters while the men were in the meeting.

Radio Communication is Established With Italia; Believe Men Safe on Land

Operator of Nobile Relief Ship Receives Faint Messages; Think Craft Down on Ice in Franz Joseph Island

Rome, June 8—All Italy rejoiced today over the official communique issued by the Italia relief committee, which stated that radio communication between the missing dirigible and the Citta Di Milano at King's Bay, Spitzbergen, had been re-established.

The relief committee announced that the supply ship had picked up faint, almost indecipherable messages from Gen. Umberto Nobile, which indicated the Italia had come down on Franz Joseph Land. Despite the faintness of the messages, the radio operator of the Citta Di Milano believed they were authentic.

The signals were received at 11:07 o'clock last night. The operator was able to decipher only one word — "Franz"—which led to the belief that the Italia was down on Franz Joseph Land.

The Citta Di Milano is now calling Nobile on a wavelength of 33 meters every 15 minutes, advices from King's Bay stated.

All routine and press matter which ordinarily is sent by radio has been reduced to a minimum in order to keep the air clear and facilitate the picking up of any other messages Nobile might send out.

SEEK MESSAGES

Doubt If Earlier Ones Came From Nobile Entertained

King's Bay, Spitzbergen, June 8— The sealer Hobby, now searching the ice-floes to the northward for traces of the missing dirigible Italia, was today endeavoring to pick up further messages which would confirm those received by the Citta Di Milano yesterday and believed to have been from Gen. Umberto Nobile.

The Hobby is equipped with an Italian naval wireless set having a short wave length. Some doubt is now felt as to whether the signals received by the Citta Di Milano came from the Italia. They were not signed by Nobile, nor was anything else deciphered to definitely confirm that they came directly from him.

Lieut. Lutzow Holm has been unable to take off in his seaplane on a second reconnoitering trip from the Hobby because of overhanging fogs. The ice-boat Braganza is now anchored outside Lomme Bay, hemmed in by ice-floes.

PLANES HOP OFF

Start First Leg of Flights To Find Nobile

Leningrad, Soviet Russia, June 8— Three aeroplanes, carrying five fliers, hopped off today for Archangel on the first leg of four separate flights to Franz Josef Land in search of the missing polar expedition headed by Gen. Umberto Nobile.

The flights to Franz Josef Land will not be commenced, however, until the ice breaker Maligin has established a mobile base off Nova Zembla Land.

PART OF LAD'S FACE TORN BY SHOT FROM GUN

Robert Gilliland, 13, Bucyrus High School Student, Succumbs at Hospital

FOUND BY COMPANION

Funeral Services Will Be Held Sunday Afternoon at Oceola

Bucyrus, June 8—Robert Gilliland, 13, died at 4 o'clock this morning at Monnett Hospital from shotgun wounds received about 7 o'clock last night. The boy's face was partly torn away by the shot and he died without regaining consciousness.

Young Gilliland was found by a companion, Robert Hosterman, of this city, lying in a pool of blood in front of the church at Oceola, the spot chosen by the boys as a meeting place, from where they planned to go to the woods to shoot crows. The gun was found lying on the bicycle which the boy had been riding. Hosterman and a Mr. Stonefeller, who happened along the road shortly after the boy was found, notified Henderson & Lutz who removed him to the hospital in their invalid car.

The boy was born Jan. 14, 1915, in Dallas Township, and was the only child of his mother, Mrs. Cordelia Gilliland, who survives. He was a freshman in the Bucyrus High School.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gilliland, Oceola-rd, and at 2:30 o'clock at Oak Hill Church. Interment will be made in the Nevada Cemetery.

ANYBODY BUT HOOVER, IS CRY OF OPPOSITION

Ways and Means of Halting Secretary Remain To Be Determined

mining how this "anybody but Hoover—anything to stop Hoover" plan is to be accomplished—if at all.

Thus far there has been little definitely decided upon except the unity and purpose of goal.

They have agreed:

To carry the delegate contests, involving some 65 votes which Hoover won overwhelmingly, to the credentials committee and perhaps to the floor of the convention itself.

To button-hole incoming delegates and the lukewarm ones in the Hoover camp for the purpose of converting them.

To pursue diligently and vigorously the defeatist campaign which aims to convince the practical politicians of the party that Hoover cannot be elected against Al Smith in November.

Await Senator Curtis

But the deep strategy and the higher tactics remain to be determined.

The allies are anxiously awaiting the arrival in Kansas City of Senator Curtis of Kansas. They have talked with Curtis in Washington by long distance several times in the last 48 hours. Curtis, an astute politician and an adroit general, is said to have informed them that the outlook from the coalition's viewpoint "is not as dark in Washington as it may seem in Kansas City." Just what this portends has not been made clear, but it cheered Senator Watson and the Lowden-Dawes managers mightily.

It might mean, one of the allies spokesmen said, that Curtis has not yet given up hope that Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon may yet be prevailed upon not to throw Pennsylvania's powerful delegation of 76 votes to Hoover. It might mean, another ventured, that Curtis, who has been rather mysteriously remaining behind in Washington, has had some cheering word to the effect that "I don't choose" does not necessarily mean "I won't."

Curtis Due Soon

Whatever it meant probably will be made apparent within the next few days, for Curtis is due to arrive late tomorrow or Sunday to join his fellow allies in the grand offensive against Hoover.

The coalition met again today for further discussion, just as they met yesterday and will meet every day until the end. The conferring is continuous and unending.

Meanwhile, the Hoover people are not idle. They, too, have been meeting and will continue to meet. They believe they have enough votes now to insure the nomination of their candidate within three ballots. Their principal job, they believe, is to hold the lines fast, and they are supremely confident of their ability to do so.

Hoover Men Skilled

There are about as many practical politicians and convention startegists in the Hoover camp as there are in the allies' lineup—men like Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Senator Simeon Fess of Ohio, C. Bascom Slemp of Virginia, Ralph Williams of Oregon, vice chairman of the Republican National Committee; James W. Good of Iowa, Ex-Gov. James P. Goodrich of Indiana, and a number of others long skilled in the tactics and strategy of political conventions.

Good, in a statement designed to reassure any wavering ones in the Hoover camp, declared today that the Hoover delegates now number "more than 500 not counting any of Pennsylvania's 76."

YOUTH IS OVERCOME BY SEWER GAS, DIES

Father and Brother in Hospital After Rescue Attempts

Columbus, June 8 — Bobby Miller, 13, is dead and his father, Floyd E. Miller, and brother, Douglas, 18, are in hospitals here today because the lad found a new place to hide during a game of hide and seek late yesterday. Bobby was overcome by sewer gas when he descended through a man hole to hide, while his father and brother were overcome when they tried to rescue the little boy.

Bobby accompanied by another boy, Paul Pope, 12, ran to the man hole during the game, and after lifting the cover descended a ladder into the sewer man hole. He yelled to his companion, "I'm fainting," and fell back as he tried to climb out. Paul ran for Douglas, brother of Bobby, who immediately came to the rescue.

Douglas went down the ladder, but collapsed as he tried to lift his brother. Mrs. Sadie Davis, who had arrived on the scene ran for a rope, but before she could return, Miller, father of the two boys, had reached the bottom of the hole and was also overcome.

M. R. Bainter then tied a rope around his waist and succeeded in bringing the father out of the death hole. He was too weak to make another trip, and John Conner tied a shirt around his head and went down to bring out Bobby, who was rushed to a hospital, where he died soon after.

Stevens A. Brantley, a passerby, completed the rescue by bringing Douglas from the manhole. The father and brother are reported improved today. They will recover, physicians say. Other men who aided in the rescue were not seriously affected by the gas.

GIRL FLIERS HELD BACK ON FLIGHTS

Mabel Boll Hopes To Get Away Saturday; Oil Tank Leak Stops Friendship

New York, June 8—Undismayed by the failure of her first attempt to fly the Atlantic, Mabel Boll, "the queen of diamonds," expects to take off tomorrow morning for Old Orchard, Me., on the first leg of her oceanic hop.

Told that Amelia Earhart, who plans to take off from Trepassey Bay, Newfoundland, in her huge Fokker seaplane, also had been delayed and probably would not be able to make a start before tomorrow, Miss Boll said:

"Of course, I do not wish her bad luck, but I am glad that I am to have another opportunity to be the first woman to cross the Atlantic in a plane."

Miss Boll said that she would go to Roosevelt Field this afternoon to inspect her plane, the single motored Bellanca, Columbia, in which Charles Levine and Clarence Chamberlin hopped to Germany and which Levine has turned over to her for the flight.

LEAK IN OIL TANK

Uncertain When Friendship Will Get off for Europe

Trepassy Bay, Newfoundland, June 8—A leak in the oil tank of the transatlantic monoplane Friendship made it uncertain today when the plane, carrying Miss Amelia Earhart and two male companions, could hop off for Europe.

In order to make the necessary repairs Pilot Wilmer Stultz and Mechanic Louis Gordon had to remove the oil tank entirely from the machine.

At 11 a. m. there was a gusty wind blowing and the repair work was still under way. Miss Earhart said that they would take the air at the very first opportunity but would not run the risk of trying the jump to Europe unless every part of the mechanism was in perfect working order.

PUSH FARM REVOLT AT CONVENTION CITY

Hoover Managers Declare G. O. P. Cannot Accept McNary-Haugen Plank

Kansas City, June 6—A farm revolt, as widespread as the famous "16 to 1" and populist movements of other days, was being organized here today to force the writing of a McNary-Haugen farm relief plank into the new Republican platform.

The drive, supported by every announced candidate for the Republican nomination, excepting Herbert Hoover, assumed serious proportions when farm leaders declared an army of 100,000 farmers would march upon the convention to battle for the plank. The slogan already adopted, is: "Equality for Agriculture."

The Hoover managers, sensing the farm movement as a direct attack on their candidate, denounced the agrarian demands as a "defeatist move" against the secretary of commerce. They declared the Republican party could not accept a McNary-Haugen plank without "slapping President Coolidge," due to his veto of the bill two weeks ago.

"You break it — we fix it."

FAMILY BLOCKED

Cannot Sue Receiver of Cities Mortgage Co.; Must Make Claims

Columbus, June 6—The four members of the Oppenheim family, who recently instituted court proceedings against John A. Kelly, receiver of the defunct Cities Mortgage Co., seeking to collect about $80,000 that they charge they hold in stock of the defunct company, cannot sue its receiver without first presenting their claims for money they alleged they invested in stock of the company after fraudulent representations.

This was the ruling handed down by Judge Charles M. Rogers on record in Common Pleas Court here today.

Judge Rogers' ruling effectively blocks the Oppenheims from bringing further suit against Kelly until they can present valid claims that they paid $80,000 for stock in the company under fraudulent representations.

DON'T BUY AN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

This advertisement is published in the interest of those contemplating the purchase of Electric Refrigeration

The world's foremost group of highly specialized electrical engineers were given the task of finding out the weak spots in electric refrigeration.

A careful research disclosed that Common Sources of trouble were: Leaks (at stuffing boxes or pipe joints)—Uncleanly drain pipes—uncleanable chilling units, cabinets extending to floor and anchored there, exposed machinery with its oil and grease. Too much of the job left to be finished in the home.

Excessive trouble caused by errors of field forces making installation under varying conditions.

Responsibility for maintenance depended on owner (who generally forgets the job) or Service man.

Excessive noise was objectionable—radio interference. Improperly located equipment and scant insulation increased operating costs.

They started to work in the world's largest electrical research laboratory—to remove the CAUSE of these troubles and cure the ailments. It took 15 years of experiment, many sleepless nights, and the combined brains of 64 highly specialized engineers, who made and tested over 4,000 refrigerators of 19 different types—is it any wonder they Succeeded? Produced a machine without any weak spots?

Is it any wonder we say, Don't buy our electric refrigerator—until you have thoroughly investigated the accomplishment of the combined brains of these 64 Engineers in the largest electrical research laboratory in the world?

A Refrigerator should be a lifetime investment, something which should never have to be replaced.

You owe it to yourself to investigate before you invest.

This accomplishment is known as the General Electric Refrigerator—made and Guaranteed by the General Electric Company—it will fulfill your expectations regardless of how exacting they may be—because—

There are no stuffing boxes or threaded pipe joints to jar loose and cause leaks; it's 100% leak proof. There are no drain pipes—chilling unit is of vitrified porcelain, accessable and easily cleaned; all models are on legs and easily kept clean underneath; no anchor to the floor, no exposed machinery of any kind. Would you buy an automobile if the dealer sent the chasis, motor, etc., to your garage and then sent a mechanic out to "put it together?"

General Electric Refrigerators are assembled at the factory under ideal conditions, by men who are thoroughly trained for the job, even then it is tested many times before it receives the stamp of approval and O. K. to do service in your home.

There is not a thing left for us to do, not a screw, nut or bolt to turn.

You are relieved of responsibility because there are no belts to tighten, no places to oil or grease, no brushes on the motor to be changed or cleaned, no chance for radio interference. Nothing to do except use it.

You have to listen to it to appreciate its quiet operation; it is practically noiseless.

Various sizes and models, suitable for any home are on display for your inspection at J. L. Rice's showroom, corner East Center and Baker streets, where it will pay you to visit and prove to yourself that the above statements are more than true.

Don't buy an Electric Refrigerator—until you personally investigate.

THE PRICELESS INGREDIENT

In the city of Bagdad lived Hakeem, the Wise One, and many people went to him for counsel, which he gave freely to all, asking nothing in return.

There came to him a young man, who had spent much but got little, and said: "Tell me, Wise One, what shall I do to receive the most for that which I spend?"

Hakeem answered, "A thing that is bought or sold has no value unless it contain that which cannot be bought or sold. Look for the Priceless Ingredient."

"But, what is the Priceless Ingredient?" asked the young man.

Spoke then the Wise One, "My Son, the Priceless Ingredient of every product in the marketplace is the Honor and Integrity of him who makes it. Consider his name before you buy."

Don't Ask For Key to City in Marion; Can't Be Found

MARION is without a formal key to the city.

With numerous conventions being held here this year, Mayor Earl Hazen is being placed in constant danger of finding himself in the embarrassing position of being called upon to present the "key to the city," when there is no key.

If there ever was such a key, it has disappeared. The only record is of a key, two feet long and made of wood, which was supplied by Manager Edward Sharpless of the Grand theater for presentation by Mayor Hazen upon the occasion of the visit here of Wesley Barry, the youthful movie actor, several years ago.

With the presentation to Barry, the key has disappeared and whether or not it was numbered among Wesley's possessions when he left the city is unknown. At any rate the key has disappeared and the city is now without that necessary token of the city's hospitality.

In other communities, presentation of the key to the city takes on more serious aspects and in such cities, keys of brass, usually measuring eight inches long and weighing about a pound, are used. These keys are usually ordered in lots of one dozen.

AL SMITH READY TO DEFEND HIS OFFICE

While Cost of Government Increases State Still Will Have Balance

Albany, N. Y., June 8—In his annual statement dealing with the financial condition of the state, Gov. Al Smith today served notice on his Republican opponents that he was prepared to defend his administration of state finances at any time and at any place.

The governor's statement reveals that the total cost of New York's government for the next fiscal year will be $232,643,000, an increase of $10,938,000 over the last fiscal year.

Despite this increase, the governor pointed out the state will have a free cash surplus on July 1, 1929 of $13,725,000.

Apparently the governor has visions that the Republicans, in the next state campaign, will attack his administration of state's finances, for he wrote:

"The open season for wild and exaggerated statements about the ability of the legislature to curb the governor's spending proclivities is approaching and in the campaign, credit for great economy will be sought in speech and written statements, all of which will undoubtedly be distorted in an attempt to make the facts fit the speech."

Coffee Specials

We have purchased a Royal Coffee Roaster, so we can give our patrons fresh and wholesome coffee.

We buy our coffee green, from the largest importers of green coffee, therefore we can obtain the best coffee that can be had. If you will notice in making coffee, sometimes your coffee is good and at other times it is weak or does not have the coffee flavor; it just don't taste good. We will tell you the reason why. When coffee has been ground all the oil cells or coffee flavor cells have been broken. The longer coffee is kept, after it has been ground, the more it will deteriorate in strength and flavor.

Since we have purchased our Coffee Roaster, we will roast and grind your coffee, fresh every day. By buying your coffee of us you will always be sure of getting fresh coffee. We have four brands of high quality coffee:

OAKLAND SPECIAL—Red Bag, per lb. 39c

GOLDEN CUP—Yellow Bag, per lb. 45c

FLACH TREASURE BLEND—With each 5 bags returned we will give you a China Cup, Saucer and Plate, Free—Per lb. 53c

FLACH BROS. PERFECTION—White Bag—Per lb. 55c

You can get these four brands of coffee at either store.

We also have Jumbo Peanuts, roasted fresh, daily.

STATE SENATOR ROHE OUT FOR REELECTION

TiffIn Man Announces Candidacy for Second Term from Marion District

State Senator Robert L. Rohe of Tiffin, representing the 13th-31st district in the Ohio Senate, today formally announced his candidacy for a second term in the Senate. His declaration of candidacy was filed with the Seneca County board of deputy supervisors of elections.

Senator Rohe had been urged by friends in the 13th congregational district to be a candidate for Congress in that district to succeed James T. Begg but his announcement definitely removes him from the congressional race.

Senator Rohe, who is business manager of the Tiffin Tribune, represented Seneca county in the Ohio House of Representatives for three terms before being elected to the Senate two years ago. The senatorial district is composed of Marion, Hardin, Logan, Union, Wyandot, Crawford and Seneca Counties.

JOHNNY DOOLEY DIES AT YONKERS HOSPITAL

Famous Comedian Succumbs Month After Operation; Taken Ill in Montreal

Yonkers, N. Y., June 8—Johnny Dooley, comedian with Earl Carroll's Vanities show until a month ago, died yesterday at the Homeopathic Hospital here. He was operated on May 26 for intestinal disorders believed to have resulted from his work on the stage.

When taken sick, Dooley was on vacation in Montreal. He came to Yonkers for the operation in order to be near members of his family who lived here. With him when he died were his wife, Mrs. Mary Dooley, and his daughter, Ray Dooley, who were hastily summoned from Philadelphia.

CLUB MEETS

Mrs. Vena Ruth Is Hostess to Wednesday Club Members

Green Camp, June 8—The Wednesday Club members held their June meeting with Mrs. Vena Ruth at her home east of the village. A two-course luncheon of pretty appointments was served at the noon hour. Pink and green was the color scheme used for the table decorations also in the tiny candle favors. A feature of the luncheon was the birthday anniversaries of three of the members, Mrs. C. B. Rayburn, Mrs. Perry Uncapher and Mrs. Claud Eckley, whose places at the table were specially decorated.

During the program hour Little Misses Hope and Virginia Ruth were heard in a duet, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Vena Ruth. A reading by Donald Renwick was followed by short addresses by Mrs. C. B. Rayburn on "Women in Politics," Mrs. Claud Eckley on Women's Rights" and Mrs. Perry Uncapher on "Farm Women." "Helpful Things About the Home" was given in response to roll call. The next meeting will be held the first Wednesday in July with Mrs. Hattie Berry at Waldo.

There's a Difference in Bread

Afternoon tea out-of-doors—a delightful occasion! Shining skies overhead, pleasant companions on every side, and dainty sandwiches of HOLSUM Bread on the table—what more could a hostess desire?

So delicate is the texture of this fine loaf that it may be cut into wafer-like slices without breaking or crumbling. For sandwiches, there is nothing quite so nice. The pleasing flavor, too, adds to the tastiness of the luncheon.

And you know HOLSUM is clean and wholesome as though you made it yourself for it's made in a big, fine, modern bakery.

We close Wednesday afternoons during June, July and August.

Today in Marion Markets

A slight increase in buying on the local market was reported by dealers today. Prices were, in the main, unchanged from yesterday with large supplies of nearly all kinds of seasonable fruits and vegetables on the markets.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 8—All the grains closed lower on the Board of Trade yesterday. Liquidation was on in wheat as the result of showers in North Dakota and sections of South Dakota and Minnesota and prices broke badly, showing a decline of 4 1-2@4 7-8c at inside figures. Unexpected weakness at Liverpool was also a depressing factor. The July future showed a loss of around 9 5-8c from the high of Monday. There was persistent selling by commission houses and locals who were on the buying side recently. Holders of privileges were forced to protect themselves, and stoploss orders were encountered on the way down. Later there was good buying by locals and the market recovered some of its loss. There was some buying by shorts and on resting orders. Trade was fairly active. Russels News of New York was out with a report late in the session that the northern hemisphere is short 240,000,000 to 300,000,000 bu prospective wheat production this year.

At the close wheat was 2 7-8@3c lower; corn, 1@1 7-8c off; oats, 1@1 1-4c off; rye, 2 1-8@2 1-4c lower. Winnipeg futures were 1 7-8@2 3-8c lower.

The cash wheat was weak and lower. The trading basis was steady. Offerings were again light and the demand moderate. Local shipping sales were 94,000 bu., including some No. 1 northern sold in store at 1½@1¾c under July price. The Seaboard reported 300,000 bu. wheat taken for export. Liverpool closed weak and 2¾@2¼d down. Stocks of wheat at Minneapolis for five days decreased 575,000 bu. Argentine shipments this week were 3,687,000 bu. against 2,670,000 bu. last week. Primary receipts were 397,000 bu. against 1,032,000 bu. last week and 629,000 bu. last year.

Corn was weak and lower with wheat and indications of more favorable growing weather over the belt. Selling was continued with the buying mostly on scattered shorts and [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

OBITUARY

Oscar A Halt, son of Frederick and Mary Halt, was born Oct. 18, 1859 on the farm, south of Claridon. After spending 30 years on this farm, he moved to Kansas, Ohio, where he was engaged in the oil business.

While active in this following he was united in marriage to Miss Estella Pfeiffer, and this union has been blest with two children, Donald and Geraldine.

A short time ago he purchased a farm about five miles east of Cardington, O., where he has been actively engaged since and and those who were best acquainted with him could easily see that he was a man who thoroughly enjoyed and loved his home and family.

A very sort illness preceded his death which occurred at the White Cross Hospital, Columbus, Sunday morning, June 3rd, 1928. He leaves to mourn his death, his wife, two children, two brothers, Henry of Toledo, and Irey of Marion, two sisters, Mrs. John G. Retterer of Richland Twp., and Mrs. William Krautter of Claridon Twp., besides a host of close relatives and friends.

"We cannot understand these mysteries nor
Would we ask to understand, for—
It's not 'till the doom is silent
And the shuttles cease to fly
That God shall unroll the canvas
And explain the reason why
The death threads are as needful
In the weaver's skillful hand,
As the threads of gold and silver
In the pattern he has planned."

No one knows the silent heartache;
Our grief borne in silence;
For the one we love so well;
Dearest Father you are sleeping
And on earth no longer roam.
Fond memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

ACHIEVES SUCCESS IN PLAY DIRECTING

Remarkable Work Is Done by Harding High School Instructor

And here's how! For weeks before anyone else in Marion hears ... high school is going to ...

present a production Miss Foreman is busy burning the midnight oil over numerous plays. In making her selection she considers age of cast, length and type and suitability of play. She always endeavors to find a play with a large cast so that a larger number of students may be given the opportunity of taking part.

Selection of the play is announced, typed parts distributed among the students eligible to participate and then the exciting time of "try-outs" begins. And then comes that secret part—known only to Miss Foreman and inexplainable even by her—the manner in which she selects the performer for each role. Of course it is the student she thinks will best fit the part and can with greatest ease "carry" the role and "live" the character. And none have failed her yet!

Six Weeks' Task

"It usually takes about six weeks to prepare for a play, once chosen," Miss Foreman says. The first few weeks are given to individuals, helping them familarize themselves with the roles they are to enact, training them in studying types and the importance of the hands and walk and body movements in portraying emotion.

The fun really begins with practices, which continue for about three weeks with one or two dress rehearsals.

The thing that makes Miss Foreman's plays so notable is her realistic touch—or maybe its the scenery, costuming and lighting effects, added touches to which she gives no small part of her time. No one has ever discovered just the how or why of her successes and can only, when the play is given, marvel and wonder. Anyway, the performers always fit the roles, the scenery always fits the play and the costumes also selected by Miss Foreman, always fit the characters.

Comparatively new in the history of amateur dramatics in Marion was the institution of the one-act play this year. Three clever one-act presentations of totally different types were given by the junior class of Harding under the direction of Miss Foreman in place of the usual one three-act junior play. The three were, "Joint Owners in Spain," a character study, "Romance of the Willow Pattern Plate," a fantasy, and "The Grill," a mystery play.

Every play Miss Foreman has directed has provided a lot of fun as well as work—not only for the cast but for Miss Foreman herself. Even at times when the leading man loses his wig or the leading lady misses her cue the fun goes on and the cast and Miss Foreman come "Smilin' Through" with honors.

Asked what her favorite play had been Miss Foreman seriously considered and then said, "Oh I've enjoyed them all." However, she seemed particularly interested in "His Majesty, Bunker Bean," one of the first plays she gave and one in which she herself had taken part while a student at Miami University, Oxford.

Her First Production

Miss Foreman remembers with exceeding amusement the first play she directed, "A College Town," presented during her first year of teaching, at Green Camp Centralized School. The next year she accepted a position in the Marion Public Schools and has since presented the following plays: the first, "It Pays To Advertise," with Miss Lena Morrow and Ralph Brown in the leading roles and also with Miss Mary Pennock, now a high school teacher, as a member of the cast.

Next came "Clarence," a mid-year play, starring Miss Grace Helverstott and Frank Barnhill. "His Majesty Bunker Bean," in which Miss Helen Jacoby, Miss May Speece and Albert Postle had outstanding parts. The latter was the first play ever given at the Grand Theater, the old Central Junior High School Auditorium having been in use prior to that time.

"Daddy Long-Legs" was her third play with Miss Mildred Crow, now a teacher at Harding High School, and Dan Brickley in the leads. "Turn to the Right" starred Miss Gladys Brobst and Russell Evans, while in "Seventeen", a junior class play, Miss Donna Smith and Albert Linscott played the leads. The same year, "The Charm School," was given by the senior class with Miss Ruth Ritzhaupt and Sherman Haideman as the principal characters.

"Stop Thief", a junior mid-year presentation, was given with Miss Jean DeWolfe and Joe Rinnert in the principal roles and "Merton of the Movies" the same year with Miss Janet Trott and Albert Linscott as the stars.

Miss Geneviere Stowe and George Stafford played the leads in "So This Is London", given last year, when "Little Women" with Miss Hallie Houck and Joe Rinnert in the principal roles was the senior play. The play presented this spring, "Smilin' Through", starred Miss Anna Von Endt and Robert Elliott.

The plays Miss Foreman coached for the DeMolay have been "Officer 666", with Miss Thelma Jolliff and Charles Schoen as the principal characters; "The Thirteenth Chair" in which Miss Doris Davis and Rhu Cheney played outstanding roles; and "Captain Applejack", in which Miss Jean DeWolfe and Wilfred Luvisi were the stars.

Organizes Clubs

In addition to her numerous other duties Miss Foreman has found time to organize two popular school clubs, "Ye Merrie Players", an organization for students taking part in high school plays, and "Press Club", a society for students of Journalism. "Ye Merrie Players" came into existence in 1922 when "His Majesty Bunker Bean" was given and the Press Club in 1925. Miss Foreman also teaches American Literature.

Miss Foreman is herself an alumnus of the local high school, having graduated in 1915. She studied dramatics and play directing under Professor Loren Gate at Miami University, from which she graduated in 1919.

SOUTHERN CROSS IS NEARING ITS GOAL

Speeds Along on Schedule from Suva, Fiji Islands, to Australia

to sea. In the cabin with him were C. T. P. Ulm, Australian co-pilot; James Warner, radio operator, and Harry Lyon, navigator, the latter two Americans.

The plane circled Suva one time as a gesture of farewell and then headed straight for the southwest. In three minutes it was lost to view. Practically every white person on the islands, together with thousands of gibbering dusky natives were on hand to wave "bon voyage."

Almost immediately, Radioman Warner unwound the craft's antennae and began tapping the key which will keep the world informed of the latest episode in the greatest air adventure yet attempted.

Through the evening hours and far into the night, the faithful radio kept flashing its message of cheer.

After they had been out four hours, during which time Warner had sent several jocular messages, Co-Pilot Ulm sent this one, addressed to "QST."

"Smithy just remarked 'It's rough here.' It is really remarkable how one's air mind expands. A few years ago a 1700-mile flight over water was enormous. Now it is the shortest of our three hops. Please thank all who sent cables of congratulations to us at Honolulu and Suva. Impossible to reply individually. Cheerio."

Due at Noon

If the fliers are able to maintain their 90 miles per hour average established over the first 5,500 miles, they should negotiate the present hop in 20 hours, arriving at Brisbane shortly before noon, Suvan time.

At Brisbane the two Americans are scheduled to leave the expedition and the Australians will proceed alone over the intervening course of 500 miles to Sydney. The Americans had been engaged to fly only as far as Suva, but upon reaching there Commander Kingsford-Smith was so impressed with their services that he invited them to "honor the expedition" as far as Brisbane.

Runs Into Storm

During the two hours of the night when heavy rains fell in the path of the speeding monoplane, when ominous clouds obstructed vision and when the outlook was blackest, the crew of the sturdy plane repeated the radio message, "All's well" to an anxious world. Fearing to arouse apprehension in the minds of those who watched their progress throughout the night, they allowed no inkling of their ordeal to escape through their wireless, conveying only word of cheer when their hopes were at the lowest level in the midst of a grim battle against the danger of South Sea storm.

Fears were again stirred more than an hour later, when a message was intercepted which had been transmitted to the plane from a station in Sydney, Australia, and contained a forecast of weather along the path still stretching ahead of the Southern Cross.

The message, addressed to KHAB, call letters of the plane, and timed at 10:15 (Greenwich meridian time) said:

"Must expect one or two repetitions of storm experienced at 7 p. m. (Sydney time). Sharp squalls to the southwest and rain during next couple hours before wind settles down to steady southeast."

Messages Grow Weaker

The steady stream of messages, which had been pouring out of the plane since its takeoff, became slightly weaker and less frequent at about this hour of the night. Earlier in the afternoon, when the plane had been some four hours in the air, it reported that a radio generator had given out.

Trouble in transmitting had evidently increased aboard the craft, stations at Suva reporting that it was necessary on several occasions to ask the Southern Cross to repeat several words in order to decipher its message.

At 10:15 p. m., a Sydney station messaged the plane that receiving its messages seemed difficult, to which the plane replied that signals from Sydney were also picked up with difficulty.

"Will see you later. Want to save batteries," concluded the message to Sydney from the plane indicating that the crew were taking no chances with their transmitting apparatus in order to insure themselves that it would not fail in case of emergency.

The Southern Cross, if it maintains an average speed of approximately 90 miles an hour, is expected to arrive in Brisbane about 8:30 a. m. (Australia time) today.

Daily Proverb—"To be of noble parentage and not to be endowed with noble qualities is rather a defamation than a glory."

"Curtis Sees Self in White House," reads a headline. Did ever human being suffer from eyesight so defective as that?

And while on the subject of senate committees, what, if any, authority was there for the political fishing trip of the Hon. James A. Reed, of Missouri?

In a word, the corn belt committee says: "We must have a farm plank upon which to stand or we will flop to the back of the donkey."

We will have to say this for the new "Miss America;" she comes mighty close to perfection on the points on which she won her crown.

The "embattled farmers" rally, it is said out in Kansas City, will be a tonic for the "allies," and now it will be just like the Hooverites to retort that even oxygen couldn't save them.

The fact that a rank outsider won the Epsom derby should bolster up a bit the hopes of the eminent gentlemen whose attempts to break into the White House are attracting only a minimum of newspaper attention.

The one regret in connection with the plan to restore the old one-cent rate for picture post cards, July 1, is that it will probably work to multiply the message from traveling friends, "Wish you were here."

General Pershing hired a fast launch to take him out to the Leviathan in which he is sailing home in response to an earnest call. Can it be that John has been called upon to be ready to save the country?

Bicycle riding is said to be "all the rage" with the Moors at present. There's nothing particularly threatening to the cause of civilization unless, of course, it leads to motoring.

Princess Helen, of Greece, has instituted a divorce proceeding against Prince Carol, of Roumania. If she can't make a case against that total loss there's no use in any woman trying to break her marital shackles in a Roumanian court.

A Chicago man has sued his parents-in-law for $250,000 damages for the alleged alienation of his wife's affections. Affections up in Chicago must be on a bull market just at present.

While Charles Evans Hughes may not mean his departure for Europe on the eve of the Kansas City convention to have any political significance, it must be taken to indicate that there is at least one man in the G. O. P. who isn't a candidate for the nomination.

Giera Orangju, Polish beauty and a red agitator, has been sentenced by a court in Warsaw to eight years in prison as a communist agitator. Over here we permit communists to plot against the government with impunity and from time to time, as at present, run for the presidency and other high offices.

Courtesy to Touring Motorists.

To touring motorists, Valparaiso, out in the Hoosier state, will probably mean all its name implies—"Vale of Paradise."

Valparaiso has introduced what, so far as we are able to glean, is a little courtesy to tourists which is all her own. A two-hour parking ordinance is rigidly enforced against resident motorists, but automobilists from afar are not troubled by any truculent traffic officers or motorcycle cops or made to face a court for parking overtime or any other ordinary violation of the city's traffic laws. Should the touring motorist park his car in the business section for any time worth mentioning he is liable to find upon his return a little card reading:

"We have a two-hour parking ordinance in this city, but you may leave your car here as long as you wish. We want you to feel at home and to come again."

This city, we are glad to say, has a somewhat similar policy in regard to minor traffic offenses by visitors. The police have been instructed, so we are informed, to be especially considerate toward motorists whose license plates show them to be visitors. But the policy followed by Valparaiso has a distinct advantage. The motorist from a distance who comes to Marion and goes away without being troubled for any minor offense may, and probably will, assume that his offense was not discovered. At the best, he may assume that ours is a city in which the authorities do not go out of their way to apprehend visitors for minor infractions of the traffic ordinances. But the Valparaiso method brings right home to him the fact that he, as a tourist, is especially favored; that the authorities not only have been cognizant of his visit, but also want him to come again, and he is bound to have a warm spot in his heart for Valparaiso and say a good word for it to fellow-tourists.

For a Useful, Well-Rounded Life.

The eloquent Robert G. Ingersoll once remarked that colleges were institutions where brickbats were polished and diamonds dimmed. His was an extreme view, possibly due to personal prejudices, for Ingersoll, despite his brilliancy of mind, had his prejudices. But there are many who hold views regarding colleges fully as extreme the other way; many who labor under the delusion that, by means of a college course, a brickbat may be transformed into a diamond. Were such a thing possible, it would prove a misfortune, an economic mistake. Both the brick and the diamond have their value when proper use is made of them. The one is practical; the other, ornamental, but it is possible to have too much ornamentation.

To some boys and girls a college course will prove of almost inestimable benefit, but they are not the boys and girls—young men and young women, if the reader prefers it that way—who go to college chiefly for the sake of enjoying college life, or for the social advantages it may bring, or for the freedom from parental influence it affords. It's a grave question if such boys and girls, and the world as well, wouldn't be far better off should they remain at home. A college course is valuable only to the boy or girl who seeks and is determined to secure an education beyond that which is had from the public schools. Such a student does not necessarily have to shun the social side of college life, Greek letter society companionship or a share of the amusements which offer, but he must, to get the utmost out of college, be master of his college life and not permit his college life to master him.

In this connection, we were interested in the commencement address delivered one day this week at Fisk university by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., a man in the public eye for whom we have great admiration, in which he expressed the view that many boys and girls who rush away to colleges would in all probability make more of their lives were they to go into some useful occupation in their home towns.

"Just spending so many years in school or college," said Mr. Rockefeller, does not necessarily mean one has gotten an education. On the contrary, during that period one may simply have formed habits of indolence, acquired an unwarranted sense of superiority, or become dissatisfied with the circumstances and environment in which one's lot is cast and in which one is fitted by natural endowment to live."

Education, according to the belief of the younger Rockefeller, should fit one to lead a useful, well-rounded life, but it fails of its full purpose unless it fits the individual to live such a life in the environment in which he finds himself. "It is easy to say how useful and well-rounded a life we would live if we were somewhere else. But education's problem is to fit us to live that kind of life where we are, wherever our lot is cast."

We have profound respect for this view expressed to the Fisk graduates. We believe it to be a tenable one. We believe the value of education may be truly weighed by this Rockefeller standard. And we believe that the acquiring of such an education depends somewhat on the college attended, but in far greater degree on the student himself. The best college on earth can not force such an education upon the unwilling attendant as the ambitious and determined student may acquire at a college held but ordinary. And some of our colleges have taken this view and are refusing to permit those of whose earnestness they have doubt to matriculate.

England can hardly be criticized over here for her refusal, under an old criminal convention, to permit Harry Thaw to land upon her shores. If we remember aright, we not so long ago barred one of her daughters on the ground of moral turpitude.

Chicago claims that she has reduced deaths up there 14,000 a year by warring on disease. If she will carry on the good fight she may even up with the ravages on life of her motorists and gangsters.

Thought it may not have been kind to her, Charles A. Levine proved himself to be something of a sport by loaning his Columbia to Mabel Boll for a transatlantic trip. Had he shown more of such a spirit upon his arrival in Germany with Chamberlin he might have touched a cord of popular esteem.

Seven thousand Serbians are reported to have engaged in a riotous outbreak against Italy, which, the League of Nations has reason to know, isn't exactly what a man on the fence would look upon as a wise thing to do.

Maria Jeritza, Metropolitan Opera company soprano, has changed her mind again and has decided to sing in Vienna. Evidently Maria isn't one of those, whose number is so fearfully limited, who refuse to take advantage of woman's prerogative.

If the Mexican government doesn't soon cut out its daily reports of rebels killed, we are likely to assume that the revolution down there is of somewhat larger proportions than Mexican officials have held out.

Eugene B. Scales, who twenty-one years ago landed in New York from New Orleans with twenty-eight cents and ran that amount into a fortune of $8,000,000 on the cotton exchange, died poor there this week at the age of seventy. Like the overwhelming majority of his kind he didn't know when to stop.

It seems that Senators Nye, Walsh and Bratton might profitably study the rules of the senate regarding what constitutes a quorum of standing committees of the senate having a membership of more than three.

Former Governor Edward C. Stokes, of New Jersey, declared as a witness before the senatorial committee investigating expenditures in the recent senatorial primary in that state that "a poor man has very little chance for nomination to a public office under present conditions." Can it be that the senate committee members are so little versed in the workings of the primary system that they had to be told that?

JUST BEFORE THE FINAL EXAMINATIONS.

Do You Nod Over Work?

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

It is a good thing to be sleepy at the right time, but it is embarrassing to be sleepy at a time of day when you should be wide awake. It looks ridiculous if you nod your head in your chair and nearly break your neck when you actually drop into slumber. I saw a senator sound asleep at his desk the other day. He appeared very sheepish when he woke up and realized what had happened.

Why do people get sleepy when they ought to stay awake?

Scientists argue a lot over what causes sleep. Some hold to the idea that it is due to lessened blood in the brain. Others think it may be due to the effect of some agent generated in the body and capable of narcotic effect on the brain and nervous system.

There can be no doubt that the circulation of the blood is related to the production of sleep. Strong coffee or other stimulant in the right amount will send the heart to pumping. This causes the blood to go bounding on its way to the brain. Then the desire for sleep disappears.

You have a big dinner in delightful company and then go home to read or write. To your despair you find the words running together and the stuff you are trying to write is a stupid mess. The blood is busy digesting the food and your poor brain is in a muddle. There is nothing left but to go to bed and submit to your sleepy impulses.

Because you are sleepy doesn't mean always you are tired. You may nod and doze just because your system is clogged with an enormous meal. If you would only wake up you could do a day's work and be really interesting.

When you have mental work to do or want your mind to be alert and ready, starve yourself a bit. Take your big meals when you have time to digest them without interfering with your mental machinery.

To stay in a temperature at body heat is enervating and sleep producing. We need the gusts of cool air which strike the body like a gently applied whip lash. This keeps us fresh and wide awake.

Uniformity of temperature is deadly to mental activity. Opening the window means more than getting fresh air. It seems that your body is stimulated by the change of temperature. You are refreshed by the effect upon your circulation.

By moving about, you stir into being some gentle air currents which excite your blood flow, and pretty soon you are wide awake and ready for useful service. Don't permit yourself to grow stupid and fat by giving in to your sleepy mood. Grow strong and healthy and vigorous by avoiding the manner of life which makes you nod at your work.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

P. L. Q—What should a girl of thirteen five feet eight inches tall weigh?

2—What can be done for oily hair?

3—Is there any way to stop growing, and will I grow after I reach fourteen years of age?

A—She should weigh about 138 pounds.

2—Keep their hair and scalp immaculately clean and using a good hair tonic should be helpful. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

3—You have reached your full growth and will not grow any taller. In most instances, however, one continues to grow up to the age of twenty-one.

J. T. Q—Several years ago I had my appendix and a small tumor removed. Since then I have had severe backache. Is albumen dangerous? What are the symptoms and is backache serious? Have tried many kinds of massaging and electricity.

A—Have an examination to get at the source of the trouble. A careful urinalysis will determine whether or not the kidneys are causing any of the trouble. Whether or not albumen is dangerous depends upon the amount found in the kidney elimination. Application of heat should give temporary relif.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

He says: "I believe the greatest good can come through the use of the entire sum, both principal and interest, byt the present generation."

Mr. Rosenwald is right when he says it is foolhardy to forecast society's needs 100 years from now.

Directors of the American Institute of Architects are worrying about the appearance of buildings in America. They say architecture in the United States is suffering from the "humdrums." They think communities look too much alike and public buildings are too greatly standardized. Not many of us will be much impressed with these findings. Ride about town for an hour. If you don't see every conceivable type of house that the mind of man can devise it is because you aren't looking. And other cities are following the lead of New York and erecting for business impressive structures with towers and spires. To the untrained observer it does not seem that American architecture is standardized or humdrum.

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation, makes a speech in which he fears the influence of chain newspapers. Mr. Villard is always fearing something. He is our champion viewer-with-alarm.

Despite the warnings of physicians it is hard for the average man to go slow. And the doctors are among the last to take their own advice. Dr. Mendenhall, of the medical school of the University of Indiana, had an engagement in Detroit the other afternoon. He chartered an aeroplane, left Indianapolis at 10 a. m. and arrived in Detroit at 1 p. m. He was rushed to a clinic at Harper hospital. Finishing his work there he climbed back in his plane and kept an engagement in Indianapolis that evening.

The next day he may have held the pulse of some tired business man, advised him to go slow and to play golf.

Laplace.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

France invites the people of the United States of America to cooperate in the erection of a memorial, "an international tribute," to Pierre Simon Laplace, the great successor of Newton in the development of the mathematical theory of the laws of gravitation. The memorial is to stand at Beaumont-in-Auge, in Normandy, where Laplace was born, in 1749. Americans who wish to contribute in aid of this undertaking may obtain information about it from the French consul in New York, M. Maxime Mongendre. As a number of countries are expected to join in this tribute to a genius whose work was for all mankind, the share apportioned to the United States is only $3,000. The gift of this small sum from Americans would gain in significance if it were made up by a large number of modest contributions.

Laplace's "Celestial Mechanics" —Mechanique Celeste—put into modern mathematical form the principles developed with almost superhuman power by Newton who had not the advantage of the methods of calculus invented after his time. Laplace also translated his own work into popular form in his "System of the World," an elementary text-book of the underlying principles of gravitational astronomy that has never become antiquated. To this last work Laplace added, in the form of a "note," his celebrated "Nebular Hypothesis," which was until recent years universally regarded as offering the most satisfactory account of the probable manner of formation of the Solar system, i. e., of the sun and its family of planets, of which the earth is one.

This hypothesis has a simplicity and consistency, which gave it immediate popularity, and its striking agreement with the broad facts of observation render it still, on its face, by far the most probable seeming of all theories of planetary formation. It has been set aside on grounds which may yet prove to be inconclusive against it. Laplace himself regarded it only as a speculation, and did not attempt to work it out in detail.

However, it is not on the "Nebular Hypothesis" that Laplace's great reputation rests, but upon the "Mechanique Celeste," which replaced Newton's "Principia" as the recognized exposition of the basis of mathematical astronomy. One of the first women scientists, Mary Somerville, won last fame by her translation into English of Laplace's masterpiece, under the name of "The Mechanism of the Heavens."

Laplace was at the height of his fame during the reign of the first Napoleon, and the latter made one of his few misjudgments of men when he appointed Laplace minister of the interior. He had to be superseded after only six weeks. Napoleon remarked that Laplace had brought "the spirit of the infinitesimals" into the administration. However, Napoleon continued his high regard for the master mathematician, and he was made a member of the senate, and given the title of count.

Another notable work of Laplace was his "Essay on the Theory of Probabilities," a subject that has undergone new development in recent years. Miss Agnes M. Clerke has remarked that "Laplace nowhere displayed the massiveness of his genius more conspicuously than in the theory of probabilities." He said that this was common sense expressed in mathematical language. A marked peculiarity of Laplace's mind was its intuitive power. All genius possesses this transparent quality. But even the best minds see through windows, and do not stand in the open, whence their limitations. — Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Morris Becker, for forty-two years a leadin and cleaner in Chicago, has been bedeviled beyond human endurance during that time by his places of business bombed and burned, ployes slugged and robbed and threatened competitors. But no one has been punishe he hit on the brilliant idea of taking Mr. Capo business with him; in other words, of fighti with fire. "Now," Mr. Becker is quoted as s "I have no need of the state's attorney or the department. I have the best protection world."

For since the partnership was announced threat has come to Mr. Becker, not a single has been thrown, there has not been even a w of a beating or a shakedown. The Master C and Dyers' association, commercial rivals o Becker, did send an emissary to Mr. Becker to find out what it was all about. And whe ambassador arrived he was met by Mr. Capon self, who greeted him with these words: "Ge here! You try to monkey with my busines I'll toss you outa the window!"

Mr. Becker may have solved the problem ing business peacefully in Chicago. If he has business institutions should adopt his poli Cashiers of banks, for instance, and bank r should be chosen from the ranks of the str gang; the post-office department should hire a clerks the most successful of Chicago's thie automobile manufacturers should instruct ambitious and hard-working gunmen the ope and operation of their agencies.

The Mystery at Styles

THE YEAR'S MOST BAFFLING SERIAL STORY

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

What Has Happened So Far

John Cavendish invites Hastings, an old friend, home on sick leave, to spend a month at Styles Court, presided over by his stepmother. She has recently married Alfred Inglethorp, much disliked by John, his wife Mary and his brother Lawrence. Soon after Hastings' arrival, Evie Howard, companion to Mrs. Inglethorp's companion, announces the new husband as a confirmed fortune hunter and leaves, begging Hastings to look out for Mrs. Inglethorp, who, she says, is beset by a number of sharks after her money. Without her knowledge, Hastings calls on Cynthia Murdoch, who lives at the hospital but works in a dispensary. They have quite a discussion about poisons. Following a quarrel with her husband, Mrs. Inglethorp is mysteriously stricken during the night and dies. Inglethorp happens to be out of the house that evening with Dr. Bauerstein, a London specialist who is sojourning in the neighborhood. Hastings persuades John to allow M. Poirot, an old friend and a famous detective, to investigate his mother's death. Poirot discovers a number of clues. Inglethorp pretends great grief. Hastings concludes that Mrs. Inglethorp was poisoned by strychnine in a cup of cocoa brought to her late at night. Poirot is indifferent to this suggestion and Hastings loses confidence in him. Lawrence feels that his mother died from natural causes. The family lawyer arrives and it becomes clear that Mrs. Inglethorp's fortune goes to her husband as her re-marriage automatically revoked a will leaving everything to John.

Now Go On with the Story

CHAPTER 12

"ON an average, she made a new will at least once a year," said Mr. Wells imperturbably. "She was given to changing her mind as to her testamentary dispositions, now benefiting one, now another member of her family."

"Suppose," suggested Poirot, "that, unknown to you, she had made a new will in favor of some one who was not, in any sense of the word, a member of the family—we will say Miss Howard, for instance—would you be surprised?"

"Not in the least."

"Ah!" Poirot seemed to have exhausted his questions.

I drew close to him, while John and the lawyer were debating the question of going through Mrs. Inglethorp's papers.

"Do you think Mrs. Inglethorp made a will leaving all her money to Miss Howard?" I asked in a low voice, with some curiosity.

Poirot smiled.

"No."

"Then why did you ask?"

"Hush!"

John Cavendish had turned to Poirot.

"Will you come with us, Monsieur Poirot? We are going through my mother's papers. Mr. Inglethorp is quite willing to leave it entirely to Mr Wells and myself."

"Which simplifies matters very much," murmured the lawyer. "As technically, of course, he was entitled —" He did not finish the sentence.

"We will look through the desk in the boudoir first," explained John, "and go up to her bedroom afterwards. She kept her most important papers in a purple dispatch-case, which we must look through carefully."

"Yes," said the lawyer, "it is quite possible that there may be a later will than the one in my possession."

"There is a later will." It was Poirot who spoke.

"What?" John and the lawyer looked at him, startled.

"Or, rather," pursued my friend imperturbably, "there was one."

"What do you mean—there was one? Where is it now?"

"Burned!"

"Burned!"

"Yes. See here." He took out the charred fragment we had found in the grate in Mrs. Inglethorp's room and handed it to the lawyer with a brief explanation of when and where he had found it.

"But possibly this is an old will?"

"I do not think so. In fact I am almost certain that it was made no earlier than yesterday afternoon."

"What?" "Impossible!" broke simultaneously from both men.

Poirot turned to John.

"If you will allow me to send for your gardener, I will prove it to you."

"Oh, of course—but I don't see—"

Poirot raised his hand.

"Do as I ask you. Afterwards you shall question as much as you please."

"Very well." He rang the bell.

Dorcas answered it in due course.

"Dorcas, will you tell Manning to come round and speak to me here."

"Yes, sir."

Dorcas withdrew.

We waited in a tense silence. Poirot alone seemed perfectly at his ease, and dusted a forgotten corner of the bookcase.

The clumping of hobnailed boots on the gravel outside proclaimed the approach of Manning. John looked questioningly at Poirot. The latter nodded.

"Come inside, Manning," said John, "I want to speak to you."

Manning came slowly and hesitatingly through the French window, and stood as near it as he could. He held his cap in his hands, twisting it very carefully round and round. His back was much bent, though he was probably not as old as he looked, but his eyes were sharp and intelligent, and belied his slow and rather cautious speech.

"Manning," said John, "this gentleman will put some questions to you which I want you to answer."

"Yessir," mumbled Manning.

Poirot stepped forward briskly. Manning's eye sweptover him with a faint contempt.

"You were planting a bed of begonias round by the south side of the house yesterday afternoon, were you not, Manning?"

"Yes, sir, me and Willum."

"And Mrs. Inglethorp came to the window and called you, did she not?"

"Yes, sir, she did."

"Tell me in your own words exactly what happened after that."

"Well, sir, nothing much. She just told Willum to go on his bicycle down to the village, and bring back a form of will, or such like—I don't know what exactly—she wrote it down for him."

"Well?"

"Well, he did, sir."

"And what happened next?"

"We went on with the begonias, sir."

"Did not Mrs. Inglethorp call you again?"

"Yes, sir, both me and Willum, she called."

"And then?"

"She made us come right in, and sign our names at the bottom of a long paper—under where she'd signed."

"Did you see anything of what was written above her signature?" asked Poirot sharply.

"No, sir, there was a bit of blotting paper over that part."

"And you signed where she told you?"

"Yes, sir, first me and then Willum."

"What did she do with it afterwards?"

"Well, sir, she slipped it into a long envelope, and put it inside a sort of purple box that was standing on the desk."

"What time was it when she first called you?"

"About 4, I should say, sir."

"Not earlier? Couldn't it have been about half-past three?"

"No, I shouldn't say so, sir. It would be more likely to be a bit after 4—not before it."

"Thank you, Manning, that will do," said Poirot pleasantly.

The gardener glanced at his master, who nodded, whereupon Manning lifted a finger to his forehead with a low mumble, and backed cautiously out of the window.

We all looked at each other.

"Good heavens!" murmured John. "What an extraordinary coincidence."

"How—a coincidence?"

"That my mother should have made a will on the very day of her death!"

Mr. Wells cleared his throat and remarked drily:

"Are you so sure it is a coincidence, Cavendish?"

"What do you mean?"

"Your mother, you tell me, had a violent quarrel with—some one yesterday afternoon—"

"What do you mean?" cried John again. There was a tremor in his voice, and he had gone very pale.

"In consequence of that quarrel, your mother very suddenly and hurriedly makes a new will. The contents of that will we shall never know. She told no one of its provisions. This morning, no doubt, she would have consulted me on the subject—but she had no chance. The will disappears, and she takes its secret with her to her grave. Cavendish, I much fear there is no coincidence there. Monsieur Poirot, I am sure you agree with me that the facts are very suggestive."

"Suggestive, or not," interrupted John, "we are most grateful to Monsieur Poirot for elucidating the matter. But for him, we should never have known of this will. I suppose, I may not ask you, monsieur, what first led you to suspect the fact?"

Poirot smiled and answered:

"A scribbled over old envelope, and a freshly planted bed of begonias."

John, I think, would have pressed his questions, further, but at that moment the loud purr of a motor was audible, and we all turned to the window as it swept past.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

ME and Jubilee said for a long time when we woke up this morning, because it was dark and we knew we were awake early. I would of got up and pulled the wires and made the ghost walk, only it was so dark I was afraid I might scare myself, so I didn't. Then I thought of the squirrel and got up and let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and put on my short britches and went down and looked at the trap, and the trap was sprung and there wasn't anything in it. The squirrel had seen the walnut in the trap and then he had went around behind the trap and had tried to pull the tricker with the nut so it through the little hole that it stuck out through and had knawed the whole tricker away,but he couldn't get the nut, so I had fooled him that time even if he had fooled me.

When I had got my milking done and had fed my face and grabbed off a couple of pancakes for Jubilee my mother stood in the kitchen door kind of smiling at the bunch as we all went past the door, all of us talking at once and our dogs looking up at us as proud of us as everything. Then my mother said, "Oh, boys!" and we all stopped and said, "Yes mom." I was scairt for fear she wanted me to take Annabelle Lee out for exercise, but she said, "I believe if a lot of boys would get busy and pick some wild strawberries it would keep them out of mischief, and I could use the berries in a great big shortcake for them." We all gave a yell when she said that, and I got the dishpan, and away we went to get the cows and get them out to the pasture out of our way. By noon we had nearly a dishpan full of berries back home, and the can was only a little bent where Whitey had painted one of the cows on the rump to make it go faster, and I had painted Whitey on the head to show him whose pan he was bending. My mother had a dripping pan full of hot shortcake, and she lifted up the lid and piled it full of strawberries when we hulled them, and dished it out with berries and sugar and cream on, and she said we made as much noise as the Pigg family at lunch. And she put away as many berries as we had used. She's pretty smooth.

Younies and Maggie and Feeble come in when we were just about frail and Maggie said "Ooh may we have some?" And Butch put one hand under his soup plate which still had a bit in it, and one hand on the back of Maggie's bean and pushed her face into the mush, and said "Take mine"! I think she breathed her lungs full of shortcake, and when she started to chase Butch, Feeble tripped him and they rolled under the table fighting each other. Brothers and sisters have pretty good times.

I didn't want any supper. I have got a pretty good mother, for a woman

Love's Awakening

THE HEART STORY OF A WOMAN'S AFFECTIONS

By ADELE G. ARRISON

Clouds Gather Over Two Families

I STOOD still in the center of Dicky's room, with the sound of the door he had slammed still sounding in my ears. So this was the result of our first difference of opinion since we had pledged each other to "pick up the pieces" of our shattered happiness, and try to thee our jangled bells into harmony. A muttered oath, a slammed door, but anger in Dicky's heart—and in mine? I was not sure whether wrath, tears or laughter was the chief emotion swaying me, but that all three were present in my soul I was sure.

There had been a time when a scene like the one I had just experienced would have sent me to bed for hours with a nervous headache. But years of marriage with a man of Dicky's temperament—and temper—are an effective shock absorber, and my first resentment at his outrageous introduction of Philip Vernon's name as an issue in our disagreement merged itself into mirth at the recollection of his childish outburst almost before the sound of another door—an outer one—echoing, told me that Dicky had flung himself out of the house. That he would exercise his anger in some form of violent activity I was sure, and wondered whether his horse or his motor car would serve as the outlet for his temper.

A sudden mirthful realization that I was in his room effectually prevented me from taking sanctuary there, and me hurrying out of it. There was no one in sight in the hall, but as I passed the door of Marion's room, I saw that it was slightly ajar, and I had gone but a few steps beyond it when the soft voice of Lillian's young daughter called to me:

"Auntie Madge! Have you a minute for me?"

"Any number of them," I replied, turning back immediately. Indeed, I welcomed the interruption. Whatever Marion wished of me, it would help me to drive from my mind the memory of the unpleasant scene in which I had been a participant.

She drew me into her room with hands which I discovered at once were cold and shaking. I looked sharply at her and saw that her lovely color was gone, and her eyes filled with pain and bewilderment. Despite my loving sympathy for her, a muffled wasting therein sounded deep in my consciousness, and I was suddenly, defensively alert. If her summons meant an appeal to me for sympathy in her silent rebellion against her stepfather's return, I must be careful to say no word which she could interpret as criticism of Harry Underwood. On the other hand I must not antagonize her by defending him too warmly.

I had the curious sense of facing a stranger, as with mannerisms unusually like her mother's she drew forward a chair, put me into it and sat down herself in one facing me. Surely this young girl, as tall as I, with some strong emotion giving her face and eyes a pathetic maturity, could not be the laughing merry child who, during the years of my friendship with her mother, had been as dear to me as if she were my own blood.

"Very much, Marion," I returned gravely.

"I want to tell you a secret," she raced on, "and give you something to keep for me until I come back from school."

"Do you mean," I asked slowly, "that it is a secret which your mother does not know, and which you wish me to keep from her?"

For answer she burst into stormy weeping.
